HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp stepped up his court battle with the public workers unions Wednesday, as the Pennsylvania Justice Department tried to force thousands of striking employees back to their jobs.

The state filed 13 requests for injunctions that cover everything from garbage collectors in prisons to nurses in state mental hospitals. Officials estimated that more than 50,000 of the state's 120,000 workers are on the picket lines.

Harry Boyer, state president of the AFL-CIO, urged both sides to consider entering a fact finding agreement that would stop the strike until a report is prepared. There was no response from Shapp or the unions.

"Our concern is for the state employees on the one hand, and the welfare of the citizens of the state on the other," Boyer said. "We strongly urge the parties to return to the bargaining table concurrent with fact finding."

The three unions that are on strike cover about 90,000 state employees. The unions estimate that most of their membership has stayed away from work, contrary to the state's figures.

The Justice Department won two key court suits Wednesday forcing nurses back to work at state general hospitals and in state mental institutions. Custodial workers were also ordered back to work at the eight general hospitals.

The department had already obtained court orders forcing prison guards, psychiatric security aides and prison support personnel back to work, along with a scattering of strikers in other areas.

"We are operating at reduced levels everywhere in the state, but the state is open and nothing is shut down totally," said Edward Mitchell, Shapp's press secretary.

Mitchell said violence on the picket lines is a problem. The state won an injunction Wednesday afternoon severely restricting picketing around state office buildings here. There have been nine arrests of picketers.

"Some of the stories are just incredulous," Mitchell said. "You've got people putting nails and glass on the roadway, slashing tires, breaking windows and throwing rocks."

The strike began at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday. It is the largest public employees' strike in Pennsylvania history. Most of the workers are members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

The other strikers belong to the Pennsylvania Social Services Union and the Pennsylvania Nurses Association. They cover almost all of the nurses who work for the state and all county welfare office employees.

AFSCME is pressing its demands for a salary increase of 10 or 11 per cent. Shapp has offered 3.5 per cent.

The most serious effect so far has been in state mental hospitals and schools for the mentally retarded, where management called for volunteers to fill hundreds of staff jobs that are vacant because of the strike.

State still collecting taxes

By JOHN L. MOORE
Ottaway News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — The government workers' strike has stopped or curtailed many state services, but the Commonwealth continues to collect taxes as the strike goes into its third day.

"At the moment, virtually all of our offices are open" and are operating "to the very best degree possible" even though the offices were "only partially manned," reported a top administrator in the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce Wednesday.

The agency collects more than $5 billion a year in state revenues, and is responsible for receiving the state personal income taxes, sales and use taxes, business taxes, motor vehicle taxes, and cigarette and beverage taxes.

"We're trying to run it as well as possible," the department's deputy secretary for administration, Charles S. Seligman, said in an interview. "The flow of cash, the flow of revenue must be protected."

The Revenue Department has offices throughout the state, and a survey of 32 key state agencies released by the governor's office Tuesday indicated that the Revenue Department had the highest absentee rate: 64 per cent of its 3,591 employees did not show up for work Tuesday.

Even so, "we have to address ourselves to the prompt flow of cash," Seligman said. He added, "Paper processing with money is not the same thing as paper processing of other matters. The bulk of our work is with the tax dollar and taxpayers."

Seligman also said, "The speed of process and the amount of money we generate ultimately has to slow down if there's a lengthy strike."

President finally signs long-awaited housing bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

President Ford Wednesday signed a middle-income housing bill which Congress designed to his specifications after failing to enact over a veto its own bill providing more direct subsidies.

Ford did not announce whether or when he would release any of the additional $10 billion in funds for government purchase of home mortgages authorized by the new law.

Instead, he said the money "will be available if required to sustain the housing recovery under way."

He noted that last week, when he vetoed the ambitious Democratic bill, he also released the last $2 billion available to the government under the housing aid program.

When Congress passed the new bill last week, Housing Secretary Carla Hills said "meaningful amounts" of the $10 billion would be released. The money remains available through next June 30.

The measure also includes standby authority for direct government loans and government-insured bank loans to unemployed homeowners facing foreclosure.

But Ford said he would not use the authority to initiate that program unless foreclosure rates "rise significantly."

He said defaults and foreclosures are running at less than the rate in the prosperous mid-1960s, "indicating that private lenders are cooperating with homeowners."

"This is an excellent example of the way in which the Congress and the Executive Branch can —and should —work together in the best interest of the American people," Ford said in a statement when he signed the bill.

The ceremony occurred in the midday heat of the White House Rose Garden. About 35 persons attended, including representatives of the construction industry and unions where unemployment has ranged between 20 and 40 per cent.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., estimated that up to 300,000 homes and up to 600,000 jobs could be created if the administration released the full $10 billion.

The bill also authorizes —but does not mandate —either direct government loans or government-insured loans to unemployed homeowners who have received foreclosure notices. Up to $1.5 billion worth of loans of $250 a month could be made for 24 months with deferred repayment at 8.5 per cent interest.

The original Democratic bill called for grants of $1,000 in cash or subsidized 6 and 7 per cent mortgages.

That bill passed both houses by big margins, but the House failed to override Ford's veto by 16 votes. It was his 33rd veto and the fourth instance the heavily Democratic Congress sustained a Ford veto.

LBJ urged Nixon to tape Oval Office conversations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says he got the idea for taping his White House conversations from Lyndon B. Johnson.

Nixon offered a 22-page affidavit as part of a filing in U.S. district court in support of his suit to regain control of the tapes and other White House materials relating to his presidency.

"President Johnson sent word to me that he has learned that as one of my first actions upon arriving at the White House I had ordered the removal of the recording devices he had installed there," Nixon said.

"President Johnson said that the recordings he had made of his conversations while President had proved to be exceedingly valuable in preparing his memoirs and he urged that I reinstall the recording devices."

Nixon signed the affidavit last Wednesday, the day after he finished 11 hours of secret testimony before Watergate prosecutors and two grand jurors. The affidavit, along with one from John Eisenhower, son of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, were filed Monday in U.S. district court.

Nixon has sued the General Services Administration over the constitutionality of a 1974 law giving the GSA control over all of Nixon's presidential papers. Nixon said the retention of these materials in Washington has hampered preparation of his memoirs and material for a presidential library at the University of Southern California.

"I am 62 years old and desire to complete the task of reviewing my presidential materials during my lifetime," Nixon said. "Each month that these materials remain unavailable for that purpose can never be recaptured and thus represent an invaluable loss."

Nixon said many of the materials were personal and of the kind he had no intention of ever making public —working drafts of veto messages, discussions on what political candidates to support, personal letters "often written in my own hand" to survivors of Vietnam casualties, personal letters to such persons as "then Congressman Gerald R. Ford."

Nixon repeated an argument he made frequently as President during the Watergate unraveling —that a President must have the protection of confidentiality.

Gas prices won't stop holiday motorists

By United Press International

Highway officials should brace for heavier road travel on this year's Fourth of July than last, a National Safety Council spokesman said Wednesday.

The council has estimated that in the three-day holiday period beginning at 6 p.m. today and ending midnight Sunday, between 480 and 580 persons may lose their lives in traffic accidents.

This compares with a figure of 545 dead in the Fourth of July holiday travel period of 1974, but the spokesman said it extended over a four-day period. "We are estimating 16 billion traffic miles of travel, compared with 15 billion for last year, but this will occur in a shorter time," he said.

A gasoline shortage, or restrictions on its sale through early closings of stations, was still being felt at the time of the holiday last year. All indications are that the motor fuel is in plentiful supply this year, and that despite climbing prices, motorists will take advantage of the long holiday to get out and drive.

S-burg school directors split over open meetings

By JEFF WIDMER

Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — Six members of the Stroudsburg Area School Board Wednesday night split evenly on whether all board meetings should be open to the public.

Lloyd E. Manter and Walter J. Adelman said they favor opening all meetings. Dr. John P. Lim said he wants open meetings but pointed out some problems associated with them. And members John H. Parker, Bernard Frantz and Paul L. Edinger Jr. said they want some closed-door sessions to discuss items that may harm people if the items were made public immediately.

Two board members also resigned at the hour and 45 minute informal "policy" meeting, attended by about 30 people. Both a newspaper and residents have challenged the board to open all its proceedings to the public according to Pennsylvania "Sunshine Law," as defined by former Attorney General Israel Packel.

Both Parker and Manter said since Packel's interpretation has not been tested in the courts, the board's problem is how to define what a policy meeting is. Manter said to carry the open meeting law to an extreme, two board members talking about school matters over a cup of coffee would constitute a policy meeting.

Packel said any action taken by the board in private that leads to a public vote is illegal. Stroudsburg School Board solicitor Samuel W. Newman disagrees.

So did Parker, Frantz and Edinger Wednesday. Frantz said proposed construction costs should be discussed in private so the legal process of soliciting bids is not circumvented.

Parker said charges against personnel must be heard in private first, then investigated. If initial, untrue charges were publicized, Parker said, "I could be subject to a law suit. I don't get paid anything for this job," he added.

Edinger said the names of juveniles involved in court cases are protected, and the board should also protect names of students who break school law.

Lim said he favors open meetings but said he makes off the cuff remarks in policy meetings and later changes his mind when he gets additional information.

No vote on whether to open previously closed policy meetings was taken because Wednesday's meeting was informal.

Board members also could not accept the resignation of board president Manter and Dr. W. Edmund Magann. Reading letters for both of them, Manter said he stuck it out through the budget crisis and feels he should resign now.

Both men suggested Mrs. Joan C. Patterson and John F. DeVivo — who were nominated in the primary election — be appointed by the board to fill the seats vacated.

New York garbagemen stay off jobs

Big Apple starting to turn ripe

NEW YORK (UPI) — Piles of garbage rotting on sidewalks and monumental traffic jams caused by a wildcat strike in the Highway Department marked New York City's deepening labor crisis Wednesday while Mayor Abe Beame and state officials continued to battle over the city budget.

Beame claimed in a TV report to the city Wednesday night that "a number" of striking garbagemen had returned to work and were "collecting trash at designated points."

And the city's sanitation commissioner, Robert T. Groh, tried to boost a back-to-work movement by offering that garbagemen returning to work today would not suffer the penalties possible under a state civil service law —loss of two days pay for each day out and some seniority.

A total of 7,000 garbagemen are striking in protest over the firing of 3,000 others in Beame's July 1 budget cut-down, and it was not immediately clear how many had returned to work.

Democrat Beame, who is seeking to solve the city's budget crisis by getting additional taxing power from the state legislature, attacked the Republican state legislative leadership in his TV address, accusing them of tying approval of his request to "another, unrelated piece of legislation" —a reference to a school aid bill.

Meanwhile, police union officials, though angry over the release of 5,000 policemen, decided against staging a protest action like the garbagemen.

"The vote was in the negative. The delegate body felt the public safety must be maintained," said Patrolmen's Benevolent Association President Ken McFeeley.

Some city firemen were staging work-by-the-book protests or calling in "sick" to call attention to the firing of 2,000 from their ranks.

About 150 fired police officers demonstrated at City Hall, the scene of a disorderly protest Tuesday. No incidents were reported, but officials sealed off City Hall with barricades and beefed up police details.

New York's current crisis began with Mayor Abe Beame's stringent recession budget that cut 19,000 public employees from city payrolls. The mayor was struggling to convince the state legislature that New York City needed new taxing powers.

The garbagemen walked out Tuesday after 3,000 of them were fired.

As tons of garbage stacked up, the city secured a temporary restraining order barring the sanitation union from continuing its wildcat strike.

Union leaders insisted they had not authorized the strike and there was a question as to whether the 7,000 garbagemen still on the payroll would obey the order.

Union leaders, however, said they would seek to vacate the restraining order.

Needed to break talk deadlock

Israel still wants U.S. help

By United Press International
Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said Wednesday that only joint efforts by the United States and Israel could break the deadlock in negotiations with Egypt for a second interim peace agreement.

"I stress the word 'joint,' because any effort which is not will fail to produce the results desired by us and the United States," Allon said at a ceremony dedicating a $1.5 million replica of the Liberty Bell in Jerusalem to the American people.

U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon, who arrived in Israel Wednesday with his wife and daughter to replace the late Kenneth B. Keating, told newsmen at Ben Gurion Airport his main task was to "try and move towards a durable and stable peace, which is so badly needed in this region."

Toon is a career diplomat whose previous post was Yugoslavia.

An Israeli public opinion poll said two out of three Israelis favor a tough stand against U.S. pressure for greater concessions to Egypt.

Egypt wants Israel to surrender the Gidi and Milla mountain passes in the west central Sinai for a new settlement, but Israel contends the heights are vital to its security.

In Geneva, the city information office said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko would meet in Geneva July 10 and 11 for further Middle East talks.

The surprise announcement by Swiss authorities raised diplomatic eyebrows, because normally such a meeting would be announced by the two countries involved first.

A Tass news agency dispatch from Moscow later confirmed Gromyko and Kissinger will meet "to exchange views on questions of interest."

Wallace breaks leg

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Gov. George C. Wallace, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, has broken his paralyzed left leg and will have to remain in a cast for six to eight weeks, his personal physician said Wednesday. Dr. Hamilton Hutchinson said "Wallace suffered a simple fracture of the tibia "probably within the last two or three days." He said he assumed the injury occurred during physical therapy exercises but could not be sure because the governor had no feeling in the leg. "There is very little risk" of complications developing, Hutchinson said. "It is a simple break. It will heal."

'Big truck' bill defeated

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania House Wednesday defeated a "big truck" bill which would have increased by three tons the loads tractor-trailers are allowed to haul on state highways. The measure was defeated 128-59, but chief sponsor Rep. Russell LaMarca, D-Berks, said he would ask for another vote on the measure next week. Under current law, trucks are limited to carrying 73,000 pounds of freight. The LaMarca bill would increase the limit to 80,000 pounds. It is opposed by the Pennsylvania AAA Federation.

Kraft pickets arrested

FOGELSVILLE, Pa. — Sixteen pickets were arrested Wednesday after another outbreak of violence at the strikebound Kraft Food Co. plant, authorities said. The 16 were taken before a judge on charges of violating a court injunction limiting the number of pickets at the plant, where workers have been on strike since January. The arrests came after there were reports of stone-throwing, smashing of car windows and throwing of roofing nails on roadways leading towards the plant. About 1,000 employees, represented by Local 1881 of the United Auto Workers Union, went on strike in January in a dispute over an initial contract between Kraft and the union.

U.S. soldier missing in Lebanon

WASHINGTON — The State Department said Wednesday it still had been unable to trace a U.S. Army colonel who apparently was abducted Sunday at a roadblock in strife-torn Beirut. The U.S. Embassy in Beirut reported the "possible abduction" of Col. Ernest R. Morgan by armed men "at one of the many roadblocks in the city." Morgan was returning to his post in Ankara from a Central Europe Treaty Organization exercise in Pakistan and had stopped over in Beirut. State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said.

Women adopt action plan

MEXICO CITY — The International Women's Conference adopted a United Nations' 10-year "Plan of Action" Wednesday aimed at advancing women's rights. Yet, as the two-week convention neared an end, there appeared to be more criticism than praise of its achievements. Australian chief delegate Elizabeth Reid said the meeting could be "a backward step for women of the world. This Plan of Action could too easily lead only to token gestures, hollow promises and — for women — a series of unfulfilled hopes and expectations," she said.

Ford pleased with pool

WASHINGTON — At least 72 persons contributed $1,000 each to help President Ford unwind by taking a dip in his own swimming pool, built at a cost of $52,340. Six children from Brandon School in Goleta, Calif., thought the project was worthy enough to jointly contribute another 21 cents. After six weeks of construction, Ford took his first plunge Tuesday night into the new 22 by 54 foot pool, paid for entirely by private contributions. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday the President was pleased. The pool, which ranges in depth from three to nine feet, is located behind the west wing of the White House. It has a diving board and an electric heating system for cool-weather swimming.

Problems ironed out for joint space flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Launch crews pushed the Apollo spacecraft and Saturn rocket to within three seconds of blastoff Wednesday, overcoming last-minute problems in a rehearsal for the Russian-American rendezvous mission.

"We're very happy with this test," said launch director Walter Kapryan after the 3:46 EDT practice takeoff. He said he expected a review of the dry run today to lead to a go-ahead for the mission.

The Countdown Demonstration Test was not disturbed by the sudden request of U.S. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., for a delay in the joint mission. The test simulated every phase of the countdown which will lead to a July 15 blastoff of the three-man Apollo crew seven and one-half hours after two Soviet cosmonauts are launched.

Proxmire said he had information that the Soviets do not have the technical capability to simultaneously direct both the Soyuz rendezvous mission and the Salyut space station flight already in orbit.

But Dr. Glynn S. Lunney, America's technical director for the mission, said, "NASA has concluded that the Soyuz 18-Salyut mission does not constitute a hazard" for the project. Before the simulated takeoff

Wednesday, technicians overcame a pretended computer problem in Houston in the final minutes of the countdown. Then ground crews took advantage of changes in countdown procedures in order to beat bad weather moving into the launch site by blasting off earlier than the 3:50 p.m. takeoff scheduled for the real thing July 15.

Strike info muzzling protested

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors Wednesday protested what the association called "muzzling of news sources" at local state government facilities during the public employees' strike.

Len Kolasinski, president of the society and editor of the New Castle News, sent a telegram to Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline, James Wade, secretary of administration and Edward Mitchell, press secretary.

"The Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors protest the muzzling of news sources at the local level on matters which involve strictly local developments in the current strike by state workers," the telegram said.

"The society believes editors and reporters must have access to state officials in their communities who are able to comment on purely local aspects of the strike..."

Mitchell said comment on the strike has been restricted to several officials in Harrisburg "because we want to guarantee accuracy for the press. The best way is to have a small number of spokesmen."

"Whenever we have a question on a local development, we've gotten back to the reporter in every case. This is an emergency situation and we are involved in sensitive negotiations at the same time. Untrue information can only hurt this."

Ford makes prediction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House Wednesday predicted no gasoline shortages for motorists this summer, but warned of a national natural gas shortage this fall and winter.

Killings, sabotage reported from India

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Travelers and political foes of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi Wednesday reported killings by police, sabotage and anti-government protests in three states with one-fifth of India's population in defiance of the nationwide state of emergency.

The informants reported disturbances in the states of Gujarat, Bihar and Tamil Nadu, home to 124 million of the nation's 600 million residents, since Mrs. Gandhi announced the emergency decree last Thursday.

Opposition party sources said an estimated 6,500 persons had been jailed across the country under the decree and that arrests were still going on. The government said about 900 had been detained.

Travelers from Bihar, in the east, said police in the capital of Patna and other towns fired on demonstrators protesting the arrests of opposition party leaders.

Volunteers help out during strike

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Mrs. Ana Belle Calloway, deputy secretary of public welfare, said Wednesday all essential services were being provided at state institutions in Pennsylvania by volunteers and management personnel.

But Mrs. Calloway said all non-essential services at the institutions had been canceled. Many acts of vandalism were reported, she said. There were incidents of tire slashing, threats, and harassing telephone calls to volunteers.

"There is some difficulty at some places getting through picket lines," said Mrs. Calloway. "We are trying to get the cooperation of the State Police to see that those people who want to volunteer can. We really need as many volunteers as we can get."

Robert Nelkin, a volunteer at the Western State School and Hospital and the assistant director of the Allegheny County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Citizens, said the situation there was "serious and getting more serious as the strike wears on."

Nelkin said some staff and volunteers have been working for three days.

"The staff here is very tired, they're dragging. Some people have been working for eight hours then sleeping for four and then back on the job," Nelkin said.

According to Nelkin, the facility was operating with less than five per cent of the normal manpower.

"The safety and care of the residents is totally in the hands of the volunteers," Nelkin said.

At Polk State School and Hospital Superintendent Joseph Colombatto said he was operating with 72 to 90 volunteers.

Colombatto said the situation at Polk has been "relieved slightly" because relatives of some patients have taken them home for the duration of the strike.

Ron Archer, executive director of the Allegheny County Chapter of the Pennsylvania

Association for Retarded Citizens, said the volunteers were doing their best but they were getting tired.

"We are doing all right but as time goes by things become more serious," Archer said. "As time passes, there will be more problems. The staff will have been working four days. That will be a problem. People have just so much endurance. They are going to need relief. There hasn't been any emergency or tragedy, but the potential is there."

Court issues 11 injunctions

Some strikers sent back to jobs

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Justice Department is trying to do in court what state negotiators can't do at the bargaining table — get thousands of state employees off the picket lines and back to work.

The Justice Department has already filed requests for at least 14 injunctions that force blocks of state workers back on the job or limit picketing. It has won 11 injunctions thus far. They include:

—An order from Commonwealth Court forcing nurses back to work at the state mental hospitals and institutions for the retarded. About half of the 2,000 Pennsylvania Nurses Association members who work in those facilities were on strike. PNA has a total of 3,300 members.

—An order forcing about 500 members of the nurses association back to work in the state's nine general hospitals. Commonwealth Court in a separate injunction also ordered a number of support workers back in the general hospitals.

—An injunction from Commonwealth Court that forces custodial and supportive workers, in some cases, back to work in state prisons. In a ruling Tuesday, Commonwealth Court forced prison guards and psychiatric aides back to work.

"I now have some doubts about it. The bill would make it more difficult for some of these state institutions to go anywhere because people don't want them anywhere," Hill said.

By a narrower, 29 to 16 tally, the Senate also approved and sent to the House a bill sponsored by Sen. Austin Murphy, D-Washington, to give other Pennsylvania municipalities the same strengthened zoning protection against state institutions.

Hill, in his Philadelphia office at the time the Senate voted, said by telephone he might not have voted for his own bill.

"This legislation would destroy 10 years' effort to make this one nation indivisible and it would reopen wounds that have healed," Hankins said.

If the House agrees to the amendment authored by Sen. Charles Dougherty, R-Philadelphia, it would pose a political dilemma for the governor's presidential ambitions.

The PHRC plans to submit its latest school desegregation plan for Philadelphia to Commonwealth Court July 7.

In other action the Senate approved two bills aimed at raising new barriers to the locating of state institutions, including correctional half-way houses, in local residential areas.

The Senate voted 36-9 to approve a bill sponsored by Sen. Louis Hill, R-Philadelphia, to require any state agency to comply with Philadelphia's zoning code.

Things aren't all peaches and cream in Pocono Twp.

TANNERSVILLE — Pocono Township residents were in a complaining mood Tuesday night.

The township supervisors received several complaints about activities in the township before and during their meeting.

Supervisors chairman Willard Anglemeyer asked township police chief Jim Kresge to check on the number of Roadway trucks using Route 611.

All the supervisors said they had noticed a large number of trucks on the road while a resident said he had heard other residents complaining about the trucks.

Anglemeyer said a previous agreement between the township and the trucking firm was the trucks would use the Rte. 611, which cuts through Tannersville, a little as possible.

Instead, they were supposed to use Interstate 80 except for local work, Anglemeyer said.

Anglemeyer said he also received complaints from residents that a cable television company refused to install the service to their homes.

One family claimed they had paid for the service in April but it still hasn't been installed, Anglemeyer told the supervisors.

Supervisor John Frailey suggested the township secretary write a letter to the company to say they had received complaints and to request an explanation.

Anglemeyer said he also received a complaint from a resident who was upset by garbage collection rates.

A group of Pocono Haven residents complained about three trailers at the development which they said are being used to collect garbage and trash.

One man said the trailers had been there for one or two years and were so full of trash they had collected rats.

Supervisors said township zoning officer Jerry Thornton would be asked to check the area for a possible violation.

Pocono Haven residents also complained about a few homes which have been neglected and which they claim have become dangerous and infested with rats.

A resident said the basement of one house was full of water and was a danger to children playing in the area.

"The summer people have started coming up. What if a kid falls in there and drowns? Heaven forbid it comes to that before any action is taken," he said.

Another Pocono Haven resident complained about the bridge at the development.

She claimed she had been riding a bicycle across it and struck a pothole covered with brush and was thrown into the stream.

Supervisors also received a letter from Stuart Pipher, chairman of the township planning commission and the township parks commission, who requested an air conditioner for the municipal building.

Pipher said in his letter that the supervisors had received prices last year but hadn't taken any action.

Secretary Elmer Munch found prices dated July 30, 1974, for two air conditioners but reported the supervisors had never received bids for the conditioner.

Supervisors asked him to contact area dealers to get other prices.

One room was enough for teacher Ralph Shupp

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — It was a direct ancestor of Ralph E. Shupp of Stroudsburg that first migrated to Monroe County from Saxony, Germany settling on 900 acres in Gilbert that was originally purchased from William Penn for the phenomenal sum of 50 cents an acre.

Two brothers, Philip and Abraham, in 1757, came to Gilbert and initially set aside four acres of land to be used for the Gilbert church and cemetery that are still located there today.

Shupp and his wife Marguerite, married 48 years this fall, are the sixth generation of Shupps to have settled in Monroe County. The life of the well-known, 77-year-old former West Ender is steeped in a tradition all its own.

Having graduated from Fairview Academy in Brodheads-ville, Shupp became a teacher and at one time, for a summer term, served as assistant principal of the famed and prestigious local academy.

Raised on his father's 60-acre farm located across from the West End Fairgrounds on Rte. 209, Shupp was adept at working a huge farm team of horses at an early age. Although it took nearly two years to train many young work horses, the Shupp teams were trained much faster, because as soon as the new horses were born they were handled and blankets were put on them at a young age, so they'd get used to being ridden.

After the young colts were hooked up to an older horse for a mere four or five times, they generally got the routine of farming down pat.

With a shout of "gee" for a right turn and "ha" for a left turn the horses usually responded on cue to Shupp's command, except for one time when three of them, while still hooked up to an old-fashioned binder, ran away and crashed into the side of the corn crib.

In 1916-1917 Shupp taught school for the first time in the old Gearhardt's School, which later merged with the Hoffman School to become one of the first consolidated schools in the county. The school was located where Amzi Altemose now lives on Rte. 715 in Brodheads-ville.

Sinking back into a stuffed chair in the living room of his home on Thomas Street, Shupp looked over two copies of school programs he had provided for his pupils who ranged from the first to the ninth grade.

On both school programs, the picture of the stern school-master Shupp is glued to the front cover.

"I was a good disciplinarian," said Shupp. "My father told me if I was to be a good teacher, I would have to be the boss and I was."

Receiving $40 a month in salary, Shupp earned his temporary provisional teaching certificate after graduating from Fairview Academy and taking the required test.

After teaching for two years, he took an examination and received his permanent certificate and received a raise in salary of $10 a month.

The teacher's classes 50 years ago lasted from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. every day with school being held five days a week, seven months a year.

In 1917-1918 Shupp taught school at the Sugar Hollow one-room school and that involved a walk of five and a quarter miles each morning. He paid a local neighbor boy 25 cents a month to start the fire in the classroom stove each morning before he got there, because it took so long to walk the long distance to school.

In the early one-room school days of the West End, Shupp said teachers were required to cut their own firewood. They were hired shortly after the spring term ended, and had the summer months to cut the wood. The pay period only lasted during the actual months that school was taught, however.

If there is one girl who probably will never forget Shupp as a school teacher, it is probably Natalie Setzer, who reportedly organized the school children one day so that they locked Shupp out of the school.

Shupp said locking the teacher out on Shrove Tuesday was traditional, but when the door wasn't opened in an hour, he decided that some punishment was in store.

When he discovered that Natalie was "the ringleader," he gave her a licking with a harness strap.

Shupp, himself, had attended a one room school at Gilbert across from the House of Baskets. He still has his school cards from the early 1900's and an early honor card carries a "testimonial of appreciation for Ralph Shupp for spelling, for excellence in deportment, good recitation and regularity of attendance."

After his school teaching days, Shupp became a stockman for the S.S. Kresge Company in Easton. He was transferred a year and a half later to a store in New York where he became assistant manager.

From there he took a position with the Newberry Company and worked his way up to manager in one month. He retired 17 years ago from the Newberry Company after serving with them for 40 years.

He is presently a director of the county soil conservation district, and county federation of sportsmans clubs, a director of the West End Rod and Gun Club and a director of the Pocono Forestry Association.

Health screening set for Monroe

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Pennsylvania Department of Health will conduct free, walk-in, health screening programs in three Monroe County communities.

A special mobile unit, consisting of a team of health professionals will administer a battery of tests to check such disorders as anemia, diabetes, cholesterol, obesity and hypertension.

Each participant will also receive a pulmonary function test to screen for the diseases of emphysema and silicosis.

All individuals will receive the results of their tests at the site and will be counseled in the specific areas of their health.

An individual showing evidence of abnormality will be referred to his private physician for diagnosis and follow-up treatment.

The entire screening program will take about an hour and will be administered on a first come, first serve basis.

Erosion control checked

STROUDSBURG — Mid-May rains have caused excessive soil erosion in some areas of Monroe County, according to Austin Blakeslee, technician with the Monroe County Conservation District.

Because of the grain shortage which developed in late 1974, many farmers in both Monroe and Carbon Counties planted fields of corn that will not meet the allowable soil loss without conservation practices.

Approximately 20 tons of top soil was lost per acre in a one-hour storm. The allowable loss for this area is two to three tons of soil per acre.

Blakeslee said these losses can be held within the two to three ton range by using proper conservation practices.

These practices might include strip-cropping, diversions, grassed waterways and on steep slopes, a stone center waterway.

Blakeslee urged farmers to develop a conservation plan in order to meet the 1977 deadline on soil-erosion for agricultural areas.

For more information on the Erosion Control Law and the conservation plan, people can contact the Monroe County Conservation District, 2115 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, telephone 421-5220.

Just who is breaking whom?

Gerald McEntee, the executive director of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees now striking in Pennsylvania, has accused Gov. Milton Shapp of trying to break the union by his refusal to budge from a 3.5 per cent pay raise offer.

It seems to us to be more a case of the union trying to break the state — not to mention the state's taxpayers.

In a survey taken in the Monroe County area last week, The Record discovered that, by and large, state workers already are earning more than people in similar jobs in private industry. Since this is traditionally a low-wage area, we're certain that it isn't the same everywhere, but we suspect a comparison would show that state workers are close to the norm of those in the private sector.

Pay isn't everything, and our survey didn't touch on fringe benefits, which are greater for government employees than for others. If fringes were included, we have little doubt that, on a job-for-job basis, state workers would come out quite a bit ahead of everyone else.

Everyone wants to make more money, of course. But there comes a time when some restraint has to be shown, or the wage-price spiral takes over and everyone is hurt. And that is now.

"They want to take us on and break us because we have come so far in such a short time," McEntee charged — typically paranoid and typically revealing. Unions are no different than other monolithic organizations. They all seek power as a primary end. Apparently, the AFSCME isn't going to let a little thing like recession and economic hardship stand in the way of its rapid progress toward enormous power.

It is also interesting to note that McEntee's remarks didn't deal with the economic realities at all. He did not mention the fiscal plight of either his members or the state. And he certainly had nothing to say about the taxpayers. No, he talked instead of the power struggle between his union and the state, as if that were all that is at stake.

As he appeared at a press conference after calling the strike Monday, McEntee was wearing a lapel button reading "Keep Retreat Open." We suggest this is a good time to heed that advice and retreat from a position that can only bring harm to everyone concerned.

Time for restraint

In light of the strike by state workers demanding a bigger pay raise, it's interesting to note the economic situation of the country as of this week.

The Congressional Budget Office has predicted an increase in the rate of inflation from the 5 per cent low in May to a 6.3-8.7 per cent range by the end of the year.

The CBO added to its gloomy forecast by predicting the unemployment rate will hold at from 7.8 to 8.2 per cent for 1976, slightly down from May's 9.2 per cent, but still frightening.

By way of contrast, the average unemployment rate for the last 25 years was 4.7 per cent.

Unemployment is so high and so persistent that President Ford has found it necessary to extend for another six months the federal program that gives 13 extra weeks of unemployment compensation to workers out of a job for more than a year.

More inflation isn't the way to end unemployment. Inflation, in fact, was a prime contributing cause to the recession. Restraint? Yes, we think that might be wise in this economic climate.

Sun finally noticed

It's about time that the federal government turned from the problem-plagued atom to the inexhaustible sun for its energy needs.

The federal Energy Research and Development Administration has drawn up a blueprint for energy research that drops nuclear breeder research to the No. 2 spot in importance and elevates solar power research to a position of unprecedented importance.

The wonder is that it took so long to sink in that breaking the atom apart in our clumsy fashion to gather its released energy is wasteful, polluting and silly — the sun is up there breaking atoms apart in a far more efficient manner, isn't polluting anything and is certain to keep up the good work for eons to come.

ERDA wants $80 million for solar research. If it gets the money, there's no reason not to expect results in a decade or less. Considering the importance of seeking energy independence (not from other nations, but from the earth's limited fuel resources) a crash program is long overdue. We're just glad the government finally came around to that realization.

More toothpaste coming out of Chappaquiddick tube?

Among the more memorable phrases coming out of Watergate was Bob Haldeman's mid-scandal admonition that they'd better get the toothpaste back into the tube.

That feat proved to be beyond them, but now some more toothpaste may be coming out of a tube belonging to Chappaquiddick's most famous motorist. The indications are that the toothpaste will be all over the place if Teddy Kennedy ends up running for the Presidency in 1976.

After the death of Mary Jo Kopechne in the waters of Poucha Pond beneath Dike Bridge, and amid widespread skepticism concerning Kennedy's version of the events, one of the very few pluses going for him was the fact that Mary Jo's parents said they believed his story. This was important psychologically.

The Kopechnes' backing certainly did not erase the gaps and contradictions in Kennedy's story, but it suggested that somehow they might be innocently explained. The public perceived that, at the bottom line, the Kopechnes were saying not so much that they believed Kennedy but that they believed in him and were giving him the benefit of the doubt. Their support, moreover, may have been a factor in Kennedy's evident conclusion that with any luck at all he could stonewall his way right through the mess.

Reported change

Now, however, the Kopechnes are reliably reported to have changed their minds.

Expert scuba diver and rescue specialist John Farrar was the first person to see Mary Jo after the accident, and he has never believed Kennedy for a minute. A few vivid sentences from the best book on the affair, Jack Olsen's "The Bridge at Chappaquiddick" (which is full of fascinating detail, and which, after its 1970 publication, suddenly and rather mysteriously disappeared from public view): "Farrar stuck his head in the rear window and saw a blonde young woman . . . He saw that the young woman's hands were molded stiffly around the front edge of the seat. It seemed to the diver that the position could not have been assumed unconsciously, that she must have been holding the edge of the seat and craning her neck upward in the last seconds of her life . . . The girl's lips were parted; he could see that she was slightly buck-toothed. Her hair was yellow and long, and her light-colored eyes were open. 'My God,' Farrar said to himself. 'This girl is staring at me and her hair is flowing and there's something rotten. There's something really rotten.' "

Farrar has now told reporters that the Kopechnes have visited him in Edgartown, Mass., and that they accept his opinion that Mary Jo lived for some time by breathing in an air bubble trapped inside the car. Farrar thinks she could have been saved if he had been called in time — if Kennedy, that is, had not waited nine hours.

Close students of the case also believe that it would have been impossible for Kennedy to have escaped from the car in the manner claimed.

As for his story of repeatedly diving into the swirling currents in an attempt to rescue May Jo, they treat that with derision. Olsen quotes an Edgartown newspaperman: "Edgartown got sick to its stomach watching him on TV. People here know this area and they know Dike Bridge, and they can't be conned. They sat in front of their screens and listened to Ted Kennedy tell stories that made him sound like Superman, and they laughed and said, 'Come on Teddy, you've got to be kidding.' "

Olsen's view

For these reasons, Jack Olsen believes that after being spotted by Sheriff "Huck" Look, Kennedy hopped out of the car and Mary Jo drove it off the bridge alone. In this view, Kennedy's motive was to avoid being identified by Look and thus adding to an already flamboyant reputation. He then failed to report the accident through panic and mental funk.

The Kopechnes have also had long talks with Sheriff Look and accept his testimony that the Kennedy car was on the way to Dike Bridge at 12:45 and not at 11:45 as Kennedy claimed. This bears on Kennedy's story that he was headed for the ferry, since it stops running at midnight.

According to John Farrar, the Kopechnes have now "changed their whole way of thinking. They wanted to let us know. They thanked me for rushing to save their daughter, and for sticking with our story."

Farrar adds that the Kopechnes, who once said that they could support Kennedy for President, no longer consider him Presidential material.

Moscow's press spies

Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — In the Soviet Union, American newsmen are watched wherever they go. TV correspondents must take along an official censor on filming trips. Even the office help in U.S. news bureaus allegedly are required to report to KGB.

In this country, Soviet newsmen are free to travel virtually where they wish. They have the same access as other newsmen to government premises. They can interview anyone who will talk to them. Their films are shipped, uncensored, to Moscow.

Yet secret files identify at least three Soviet newsmen as veteran KGB agents. The newspaper Izvestia's Washington correspondents, Stanislav Kondrashov and Yuri Barsukov, actually run an espionage operation, according to the files.

The files also claim that Vissarion Sinev, correspondent for the Soviet labor newspaper Trud, is an outright KGB agent. Official sources tell us that other KGB men almost certainly pose as correspondents for the Communist party paper Pravda, the Soviet news agency Tass and Moscow radio-TV.

Izvestia's busy Barsukov is a human vacuum cleaner who collects press releases, congressional reports, military and foreign policy documents and every scrap of paper he can find on Capitol Hill.

His heavily spectacted sidekick, Kondrashov, moves ponderously from office to office with the grim determination of a KGB interrogator.

Together with Sinev, they have an unparalleled outpost on Capitol Hill for espionage. Kondrashov is accredited to the congressional press galleries, Barsukov, back in Washington on a second tour, soon will be.

This accreditation gives them special access to information, including off-the-record briefings. They also share indirectly in the protection of the First Amendment. They develop friendships on Capitol Hill, making it awkward for federal authorities to monitor their activities.

The late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover, for example, didn't want his agents tracking suspects around the corridors of Congress. However, he made some quiet exceptions to the rule and to this day, the FBI keeps known KGB operatives under surveillance on Capitol Hill.

The FBI has been hampered, nevertheless, by a tight budget. Director Clarence Kelley has testified more funds are needed to keep up with all the Soviet representatives now in the country — double the number 10 years ago.

Footnote: Only one of the three KGB journalists returned our calls. Yuri Barsukov, in response to our inquiry about his KGB affiliation, said: "I couldn't answer that stupid question." Asked whether he would like to deny the charge, he growled: "I won't answer any more," and he hung up. A Soviet embassy spokesman said he had no knowledge that the three Soviet newsmen were intelligence agents.

Strange Bedfellows: One of the world's strangest friendships has developed between Libyan strongman Muammar el-Qaddafi and Ugandan President Idi Amin. They are, in the judgment of diplomats, a couple of mad hatters.

Colonel Qaddafi passes out weapons to terrorists while he seeks nuclear bombs for his own arsenal. Presumably, he would bomb Israel if he could get his hands on the nuclear wherewithal. But this is by no means certain. He also has made dire threats against his own Arab brothers, including Egypt's President Sadat and Jordan's King Hussein.

The irrepressible Amin is gaining notoriety as one of history's most infamous buffoons and thugs. Over the years, he has murdered 90,000 political opponents.

The fat Amin and skinny Qaddafi get together occasionally to exchange rhetoric about the enemies they are going to destroy. Only last month, Amin ventured to Tripoli where the Laurel-and-Hardy pair reaffirmed their "strong brotherly relations."

Diplomatic insiders suspect, however, that Qaddafi is stringing Amin along. Three years ago, say our sources, Qaddafi talked Amin into breaking relations with Israel in exchange for a promise of weapons. Amin is still waiting for his guns.

'Who's the fairest one of all?'

What you should look and pay for in a physical

(Second of two columns)

Sylvia Porter

Let's say you believe in "preventive medicine" and you are convinced an annual physical exam is among the best investments you can make.

Do you know how to shop for this critically important service? How much a physical should cost? How long it should take, how extensive it should be? Do you know how to spot — and to avoid — the sloppy, mass-production physical exam?

There is absolutely no standard, "accepted" definition of the physical exam — a key point to grasp at the start.

But the New York-based Life Extension Institute, which has done some 3,500,000 physicals in its 62-year history and today performs physicals and related preventive health services for 1,300 organizations plus 18,000 individuals each year, has established general guidelines. Below is what you should look for in a physical, what you should expect to pay for it, and how to judge the individual or organization performing it.

(1) A physical exam can take from one hour to a full day — and in a few cases, even two or three days.

(2) Costs of a "complete" physical range from $75-$80 to $300. But if you're healthy and younger (under 35), you probably can get away with an abbreviated physical costing between $35 and $50.

(3) If you are under age 40, here are items which should be covered in a complete physical:

A chest X-ray; a single physical, including measurement of height, weight, blood pressure, pulse, examination of eyes, ears, nose, mouth, throat, dental hygiene, neck, chest, heart, lungs, abdomen, genitalia, skin, spine, bones, muscles and joints, lymph nodes, nervous system, rectal exam; for women, pelvic exam, Pap smear, breast exam; electrocardiogram (unless symptoms suggest special problems, a single EKG to be used as a "base line" should be sufficient for the under-40); pulmonary (lung) function test; vision and hearing tests; basic blood tests, including complete blood count, blood sugar, cholesterol and triglycerides, chemical profiles showing the adequacy of functioning of key body systems such as liver, kidney, thyroid and pancreas; serology (to detect venereal disease); urinalysis (sugar, albumin, microscopic exam); review of personal and family medical history.

(4) Expect to pay $75 to $100 for the above complete exam. For the younger person, such a complete exam is probably not necessary every year.

(5) If you are over age 40, you should be given at least these additional tests:

Proctosigmoidoscopy (visual exam of lower bowel); electrocardiogram (yearly); mammography (for women); tonometer test for glaucoma.

(6) Expect these extras to cost $35 or so — plus $40 to $60 for the mammography for a woman.

Family history

(7) If your age, family history or symptoms suggest that you may be in the high risk category for heart disease, you should also be given, in addition to the electrocardiogram, some kind of cardiovascular risk analysis.

This might involve a "stress test" — for instance, hiking on an electronically operated "treadmill" or special bicycle or stairs, while your blood pressure, pulse and heart beat are being monitored every step of the way by a physician. The Life Extension's charge for a one-hour treadmill test, with a cardiologist and technician in attendance, is $90. If included in a "package," the charge is $75.

Depending on your own medical circumstances, you can add on and on to this list — but this is enough to suggest the scope.

(8) The exam should include updating of your immunizations and a legible record of the status of your protection against tetanus, polio, etc. — plus dates for re-immunizations.

(9) You also should get a personal medical history exam with indications of your emotional status and living habits.

(10) Don't shortchange yourself on this exam. But don't permit yourself to overspend for tests not needed in your age-health bracket or to be grossly overcharged because you don't know what the various aspects of a physical should cost.

Childhood education undertakes drastic school reform

By EARL C. GOTTSALK, JR.

Dow Jones-Ottaway News

LOS ANGELES — Outside the wire fence surrounding the 107th Street Elementary School in this all-black section of Watts, life is hard. The crime rate is so bad that each classroom's doors must be locked from the outside to protect against muggers and rapists.

Most of the parents work in menial jobs or are on welfare. The average family makes a paltry $7,078 a year, and two-thirds of the children come from fatherless homes.

Outside the fence surrounding the Warner Avenue Elementary School in the Holmby hills section of Los Angeles, it's another world.

The average family makes $16,000 a year, and mansions, including Playboy entrepreneur Hugh Hefner's border the school. Members of the parent-teacher association include executives, attorneys and entertainers like Connie Stevens, James Farentino, Anna Marie Albergheiti and Shelley Ber-man.

The settings of the Two Los Angeles elementary schools couldn't be more different. Yet both are being transformed by the same program — early childhood education, one of the most far-reaching reforms of primary education ever attempted by a state.

The two schools are among 1,300 elementary schools in California from all economic levels participating in the second year of the state's new educational strategy. In all, some 280,000 school children, or 22 per cent of the total in kindergarten through third grade, are involved.

Early childhood education is designed to individualize education for each child. It stresses the need for early detection of learning problems and early intervention to correct problems before they become serious.

Under the plan, each teacher has an individual profile of the strengths and weaknesses of every child in all the basic skills, and especially in reading and mathematics. Armed with this profile, the teacher can diagnose the child's learning problems and prescribe remedies.

Since individualized education obviously is impossible in a classroom with one teacher and 30 students, the key to the California plan is a massive infusion of volunteers into the classroom to lower the adult-to-pupil ratio to a least one-to-10.

Grandparents, parents, junior and senior high school students, older elementary-school children and other volunteers help the teacher give each child special attention.

Another major facet of the program is getting parents intensely involved in the schools in other ways. The project requires that parents help teachers plan the school's goals. Parents themselves also attend classes to learn how and what their children are being taught.

Educators and governmental experts across the U.S. are watching the California program to see if it can meet needs elsewhere.

"What California is doing is very promising," says Terrell H. Bell, U.S. Commissioner of Education. "I agree with it 100 per cent. I think there is a need for early childhood education at all socioeconomic levels. I believe that parents need to be intensely involved in the schools because the success of the children is closely related to the parent's involvement."

Testing after the first year of the California program showed that early childhood education apparently helped increase average pupil performance in reading and math by 10 per cent to 40 per cent, depending upon the school. Children of all socioeconomic levels have shown good gains.

"The first-year results were far beyond anything we anticipated." California State Superintendent Wilson Riles says. "We did not expect to show any improvement for the first year because we were gearing up for a new program." Riles expects further gains when analysis of this school year is completed.

In addition, the early childhood education program has won at least some assurance of continued financial support. It has not been affected by the general budgetary cutbacks in California schools because as a statewide educational program, it is not dependent on average daily attendance figures or local property taxes.

It began during the 1973-74 school year with a $25 million appropriation from the legislature and with programs for 12 per cent of the state's kindergarten through third-grade children.

For 1974-75 the legislature

Lebanese enforce cease-fire

BEIRUT (UPI) — Security forces, backed by tough search-and-destroy orders, combed the rubble-strewn streets of Beirut Wednesday for snipers violating the day-old cease-fire between warring right and left-wing political militia.

Casualties during the nine days of clashes totaled 275 dead and 750 wounded.

Police sources said at least 15 persons were killed and 50 wounded in Beirut, Tripoli and the Bekka valley region overnight.

Police sources said more than 40 bomb blasts racked Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city, during the night as the fighting spread northwards from the capital.

The army also intervened for the first time in the conflict to halt fierce night-long fighting between rightists and leftists in the Bekka Valley region, 95 miles northeast of Beirut near the Syrian border. The region was reported quiet by morning.

In Beirut, witnesses said mortar and rocket fire began falling on Ain Rummaneh, a rightist area, in the late afternoon and continued intermittently from the direction of Chiah, a neighboring leftist area. Sporadic machine gun fire ripped through the neighborhood.

Roadblocks armed by masked men remained up in the suburban trouble spots but disappeared elsewhere in the city.

There was a flurry of political activity Wednesday as Premier Rashid Karami's two-day-old cabinet worked to keep the cease-fire from crumbling.

Sen. Gurney continues testimony

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Former Sen. Edward J. Gurney testified at his bribery-conspiracy trial Wednesday that he withheld information on wrongful political fund raising because it would have destroyed him as a member of the Watergate Committee.

The 61-year-old Gurney, testifying for the second consecutive day in his own defense, said he learned in July of 1973 that funds were being solicited on his behalf from builders doing business with the Federal Housing Administration.

He said he wrote a letter to then-Attorney General Elliot Richardson telling what he knew of the fund raising, but then had second thoughts and ordered his administrative assistant, James Groot, to get the letter back and destroy it.

"There was a reason for getting it back, and that was my very unique position on the Watergate Committee," said Gurney, a Republican who was one of former President Richard Nixon's staunchest defenders on the committee.

CIA claims Soviets not ready for space flight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA fears the Soviets cannot safely manage the upcoming U.S.-Soviet spaceflight and a second space mission simultaneously, Sen. William Proxmire disclosed Wednesday.

Dentist
analyzes crying kids

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — Everybody knows kids are likely to start bawling when they go to the dentist but up to now nobody's done much about it.

Dr. Ray E. Stewart has taken a step in a positive direction. He has separated childrens' crying into four categories, each with a meaning.

And Stewart, an associate professor of dentistry at Harbor General Hospital, is counseling students and colleagues to listen carefully and model demeanor and action accordingly.

In the Stewart scale of lachrymosity are these types:

1. The Compensatory Cry. More of a low-volume whine, a steady droning accompanied by few, if any, tears. It is the child's attempt to drown out unpleasant sounds of the dental environment like the whirring of the drill.

Such a child is almost always cooperative and should be permitted to cry away, Stewart says.

2. The Fearful Cry. Characterized by sobbing and rasping, produces an eerie wailing sound and profuse tears.

This is a fear often embedded by peers such as brothers who warn that "a guy is going to stick a needle in you that's about nine feet long and he's going to pull out all your teeth," Stewart says such anxieties can be allayed by an explanation of what is going to be done.

3. The Obstinate Cry. Really a temper tantrum, siren-like in pitch and often including kicking and biting. It frequently stirs feelings of anger and agitation in the dentist.

The motivation is a defense mechanism—the child feels if he screams long enough he will get what he wants, namely departure, Stewart advises dentists to act "with authority tempered with understanding."

4. The Painful Cry. Simply put, it means that something hurts.

Treatment: A good anesthesia and removal of the source of pain.

The agency took the rare step of making its classified assessment public with the assistance of Proxmire, D-Wis., who urged postponement of the joint mission until the Soviets have finished their current orbiting laboratory flight.

In response, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said "the Soyuz 18-Salyut mission (now in progress) does not constitute a hazard to the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project," scheduled for launch July 15.

At the CIA's request, Proxmire declassified and publicized one sentence from recent testimony by Carl Duckett, deputy CIA director for science and technology, at closed hearings of Proxmire's appropriations subcommittee.

Duckett said: "I do not think they (the Russians) are in good shape to handle two missions at once from the command point of view."

Urging postponement of the joint flight if the two missions overlap, Proxmire said: "This warning from the nation's top scientific intelligence expert should not be taken lightly."

Proxmire has been critical of the joint flight for some time. He previously questioned the safety of the Soyuz spacecraft, previous models of which were involved in two accidents that caused the death of four cosmonauts.

The Soviets have improved and overhauled the Soyuz craft extensively since those accidents.

Gov. Carey still denies arranging oil lease

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey said today he would be willing to testify publicly under oath that he had made "no contact whatsoever" with a government agency in behalf of an oil deal said to have netted millions for his brother, Edward. The latest in a series of reports by Cox Newspapers said a 1974 memo written by an employee of the old Federal Energy Office says agency investigators were advised that Carey, then a Democratic congressman, had arranged for an oil export license during the Arab oil embargo.

Carey, in a statement released by his press office, noted that on June 24 he had requested U.S. Attorney General Edward H. Levi "to undertake a full investigation of the allegations."

However, Carey said, "it seems apparent that such stories, based on anonymous sources, will persist until the attorney general's investigation is concluded."

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — The way to grab attention in sassy columns is to hook onto something new or ignored, not excluding the vulgar, hire the right press agents, pump up the oddball gimmick with parties-parties-parties . . . Pop-junk art sufficed for one column-eager couple now divorcing, messily; they got to believe their essentially trashy publicity . . . One rich Western couple bought a 25-room 5th Ave. apartment, hired an impress agent, skillfully guided them into "Suzy" and "Women's Wear Daily" and before you could summon Elsa Maxwell's ghost, tossed a party for 150 people; 250 showed up! . . . Manhattan's most successfully expensive hooker hired a press agent, flung parties galore — and wound up with a gib gushing piece about her in a top news-mag . . . One Christmas-season afternoon we were in Tiffany's buying a moderate bauble for the gal in our life and the saleslady, an old friend, asked if we knew her profession; again, indeed, as we wondered whom she was shopping: "She's ordering eleven gold items, money clips, cigaret lighters, gold pens and the like," the salesgal explained. "Every one inscribed to a different rich man." That's how it is at the top of any profession — sell-sell-sell! Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti are delaying a news flash . . . Ingmar Bergman's daughter Anna makes her film bow in Germany, not for dad . . . Columbia Pix will make a three-hour "Lindbergh Kidnapping Case" movie . . . A dirty raunchhand in "Shampoo" (there's also a raunch barber in his "Fortune") Warren Beatty's been offered every sickly role around . . . "Pan Club" author Irving Wallace's wife Sylvia just finished her first novel; not even Irving knows its plot yet; divorce? . . . The DeMille Theatre on Broadway changed management.

There's an unpublicized gambit in filling your flat with celebrities for a party: just invite them; that's how Jerry Weintraub collected the hit film "Nashville," financed and produced it and will make millions: Jerry's wife is songstress Jane Morgan, who invited the film's director, Robert Altman, to a party at their apartment without ever having met him; Altman and Weintraub got together and their bonanza resulted; the play's the thing? Hardly: chutzpah is.

Cupid's bullseyeing "The Fantasticks" cast: the 15-year-old longrun champ's young lovers in the show, Sarah Rice and Ralph Bruneau, are ditto offstage . . . Keith Charles, one of the mini-musical's early leading lads, wed the show's pianist, Nancy Ford (Nancy composed music for "The Last Sweet Days of Isaac" etc.); "Fantasticks" producer Lore Noto's son Thad, 25, the company manager, weds boxoffice treasurer Mary Westney Aug. 16 at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Forest Hills.

Italy's suddenly very popular kidnap insurance costs $600 a million; more if you're Getty-rich . . . The nation's construction industry, comparatively at a standstill, has another foolish notion staring it in the debts: threat of a huge strike here when contracts come up in July; you can't find a plumber come hail or high water but they also promise an or-else strike right after the destruction workers.

Songstress Tony Carroll (she played the Persian Room last winter) reacted to four women mugged in her building by joining N.Y.'s Auxiliary Police. Caught one prowler already and whiles away the uneventful hours writing songs, such as "Happy Birthday America" just recorded by Audio Fidelity Records . . . An old Alec Guinness film was TV'd the other night; credits noted it was a "Watergate Production" and its title? "The Last Holiday."

Pebble-sized rock performer and over-reacher Monti Rock II on the Tonight Show beat the critics to it: "No one knows what I do," he confessed, adding: "I still stink!"

Manners missing

By Jean Adams

MANNERS: (Q.) I have problems with my mother. She doesn't like Robert, this boy I go with. She said he doesn't have any manners and if I don't quit him she is going to kick me out of the house or kill me.

I told her if I could just talk on the phone with him that would be enough, but she told me she would kick me out or kill me if she caught us talking on the phone. What can I do?

Forbidden in California

(A.) Ask your mother how Robert could change his manners to please her. From the intensity of her talk, I gather that there is something specific that he does that she does not approve of.

If you can find out what this is and get her permission to talk seriously with Robert about it, you may be able to get him to change and get your mother to accept him, or at least be less violently disapproving.

PEN PALS: (Comment) Hundreds of names and addresses have come in to me for the Teen Forum national pen pal list. But there is still time for you to be on the list if you hurry.

To be included, send your name and mailing address, including your zip code, to me now. Mail it to Jean Adams, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.

Be sure your name and address are correct, clear, and readable.

When the list is ready, I will let all of you know in Teen Forum how much postage to send for your copy.

(Write to Jean Adams, The Pocono Record, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.)

Female adventurer canoes down Mississippi alone

MASSEY'S MARINA, Iowa (UPI) — Rebecca Johnson—a self-described "hard-headed" adventurer—says she's determined to overcome the elements and complete her solo canoe journey down the 3,428-mile Mississippi River.

Miss Johnson, whose parents live in Sun Prairie, Wis., said Tuesday she has progressed well so far on her summertime adventure in a 17-foot aluminum canoe. It began May 22 at the source of the Mississippi at Lake Itasca in northwestern Minnesota.

By late today or Friday, the 23-year-old University of Iowa student hopes to be in Davenport, Iowa.

She said in a telephone interview that she hopes to complete the marathon journey to New Orleans by "the end of July or early August."

"It's real hard to say just when I'll finish because you always come up against road blocks," the art student said. "The weather is often the biggest problem. It always kicks up a lake when I want to cross it. The river forms several major lakes, and I got stuck on Lake Pepin in Minnesota for three days."

However, she said although she's a "skinny lady" and must fight the elements, she has no intentions of "hauling out" — docking her boat for good.

"First there was rain, now the heat—it's a real stinker—and the bugs have been kind of bad, but these have been minor problems," Miss Johnson said.

"There's been nothing that can make me turn back. There's no question I'm going to make it unless things get 10 times worse. There's been a lot of hassles and loneliness at first, but I haven't capsized yet and that was something I expected to do by now."

"Everyone has given me a hand along the way. People will talk you out on the river. Some even offer you dinner and say you look warm, then give you a beer."

'Christian' concert planned

SWIFTWATER — The Continental Singers and Orchestra will present a concert of contemporary Christian music at 8 p.m. July 11 in the Pocono Mountain Senior High School, Swiftwater.

The Continental Singers and Orchestra are under the direction of Randy Swanson.

The singers will present a two-hour performance of concert anthems, spirituals and folk adaptations. They will feature an American bicentennial production and selections from "Share."

The singers are selected by audition from thousands of high school and college-age people across the country. The group consists of 25 vocalists and a 15-piece orchestra. Rather than being paid, each member of the group raises approximately one-half of his tour's cost.

The other half is raised as a result of concert appearances.

The singers, headquartered in Thousand Oaks, Calif., have toured through Europe, South America, Australia, New Zealand, the Caribbean and the Orient. This summer the singers are touring America.

Swanson is a graduate of UCLA and has performed for the Academy Awards telecast. He was featured UCLA soloist on TV in 1972.

The concert is being presented by the Pocono Area Campus Life Clubs. It is free.

Crop harvest begins

Produce best buy in July

By LORA SHARPE
Family Fare Editor

STROUDSBURG — Produce — fresh, frozen and canned — should be the best buy for shoppers this month as both local and national crops begin to come in.

Beef should remain a reasonable buy in the meat case, although reports from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) indicate the supply is only adequate. Beef supply, though, is a record for the month.

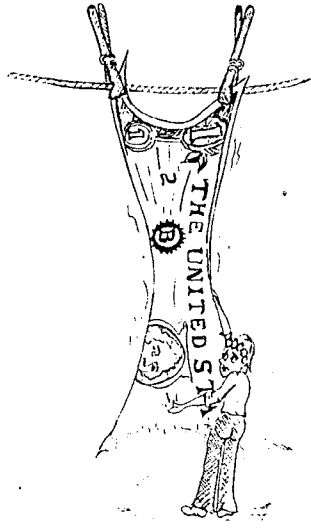

Fourth of July sales boost sales for such popular barbecue items as hot dogs and watermelon.

A multitude of fresh fruits are available at sale prices at several area markets and some vegetables are sharing the sale arena.

Nectarines are selling for an average of 49 cents a pound. Blueberries are offered for between 59 and 69 cents a pint. Peaches are selling for a low of three pounds for $1.

Lemons and limes are on sale at several markets for a variety of prices — the lowest is six limes for 29 cents. Watermelon, whole, can be bought for nine or 10 cents a pound.

One store even has mangoes in supply for 58 cents each. Cherries, bananas and pineapples are other sale items at one market or another.

Meanwhile, in the vegetable bin, lettuce has hit a low of 25 cents a head and celery is being advertised for 38 and 39 cent a bunch. Cabbage at 10 cents a pound remains on the sale list.

Frozen vegetables and canned non-citrus fruits should help compensate for those items not available or not economic fresh. Both are in plentiful supply this month.

Meat prices have risen over recent months. The low for ground beef, for instance, is 77 cents a pound; in April, it was 63 cents a pound.

Whole frying chickens were selling for 39 cents a pound in April; the lowest advertised price this month is 49 cents a pound.

While beef is in adequate supply, pork is only in light supply. Poultry, including broiler-fryers and turkey, is in adequate supply.

Meat substituted, in the form of dry beans and peas are on the market in abundant supply, though. Protein-rich nuts are also available in great numbers.

Milk and dairy products will be available only in adequate supply following seasonal high production in May and June. Nonfat dry milk, however, which is often an economical substitute for liquid milk purchases, is in plentiful supply.

Fourth of July shoppers may note that lamb is appearing on sale lists for the first time in several months.

Markets are predictably advertising their salads, cold cuts and the all-American favorite, the hot dog, for the patriotic holiday.

Culinary teachers share secrets of delectable meal

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. —

In Hyde Park, N.Y., an organization known fondly as the C.I.A. turns out master chefs instead of super-sleuths. This C.I.A. is the Culinary Institute of America, which currently trains some 1,300 students a year to become professional chefs.

Writing in "Reader's Digest," Jack Denton Scott has persuaded the C.I.A.'s top teachers to share their secrets.

President-emeritus Jacob Rosenthal divulges, for example, that the modern method of roasting meat — at 275 degrees — consistently increased yields by 10 to 15 per cent over old, high-heat methods.

More on meats: "Choice" grade beef, properly aged, costs less than "prime," has less fat, and tastes almost the same. Three tablespoons of uncooked oatmeal is an effective stretcher for a pound of hamburger; add two ounces of liquid (water, wine or broth) to the pound, and your patties will be juicier, too.

The master chefs agree, that fresh fish has far better flavor and texture. But, noting that frozen fish is economical and easily available, they suggest that it will gain flavor if poached in a thick soup such as lobster or shrimp bisque, cream-of-mushroom or cheese soup. "You will have not only a tasty fish, but also a ready-made sauce," Scott notes.

Chicken is versatile, nutritious and economical; chefs love it. One of the C.I.A.'s 70 master chefs has said, "Poultry is for a cook what canvas is for a painter." A tip he passes along: substitute breast of chicken for expensive veal in recipes such as scallopine or a blanquette.

Sweet butter, the pros say, is recommended for sauteing or sauces. It is fresh, without preservatives, and gives food a smoother flavor. Herb butter, made with chives, parsley, watercress or garlic, can be stored in the freezer, then sliced to add a filip for meats and fish.

A bit of advice that has been heard before but remains a rule firmly taught at the Culinary Institute: "When shopping, always prepare a list, and stay with it! Don't let a roving eye spark you into 'impulse' buying. That's for amateurs."

Commodore's gala set

POCONO PINES — P. Allen

Rodriguez, commodore of the Lake Naomi Club Sailing Association has announced that Mrs. William Gross of Lake Naomi will be honorary chairman of the Commodore's Gala to be held Friday at Lake Naomi, Pocono Pines.

A dinner dance, to be held in the Ballroom of the Lake Naomi Club House at 7 p.m., will initiate the Lake Naomi Club Bowl Regatta weekend.

The Lake Naomi Club Bowl is a trophy donated eight years ago by Robert Steele of Lake Naomi and Winter Haven, Fla.

The trophy will be won by the skipper with the most points accumulated in the three-race series to be conducted over the weekend.

Competing will be Captains Bill Person of Duster Fleet Seven and Blaine Purnell of Sunfish Fleet 189.

The regatta will be preceded by Family Fun races on Friday and will be climaxed on Sunday by the Awards Reception at 4:30 p.m., in the Club House.

A Victorian style padded applique

By PHYLLIS FIORATTA

How elegantly gaudy were those Victorian parlors with beaded lampshades, potted ferns and cut-velvet chaises longue. Overdecorated and overtextured was the style and Sabrina, an elegant applique of satin and velvet, was part of it all. This cornucopia design can be framed, made into a pillow, or incorporated into a quilt.

1. Cut a piece of background cardboard 12 x 14 inches. Cut a piece of velvet one inch larger than the cardboard on all sides.

square equals 1 inch. If you do not know how to enlarge patterns on a grid, send your request for grid information along with a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to The Leisure Craftsman in care of The Pocono Record. Note: The grid information does not include the patterns.

3. To make patterns for the fruit, enlarge the grid on another piece of cardboard so that one square equals 1 inch. Draw the fruits on the grid and then cut them out. Fig. 1 is the leaf; Fig. 2, the lemon; Fig. 3, the apple; Fig. 4, the pear; Fig. 5, the banana and Fig. 6, the cornucopia. The watermelon rind is a 4-inch circle, topped with a 3-inch circle for the pulp. Seeds are free form shapes. Grapes are 1-inch circles.

4. Cut the fruit from velvet or satin in appropriate colors.

5. Pin the cornucopia to the left corner of the fabric background. Turn the edges under 1/8 inch and sew down with an embroidery stitch. Before you complete the stitching, stuff with a thin layer of cotton or polyester. Sew running stitches in parallel lines through the stuffed cornucopia to create the impression of weave.

6. Sew the watermelon rind next, stuffing it slightly. Top with the watermelon pulp and the seeds, stuffing both these layers, as well.

7. Arrange the other fruits around the melon, sewing and stuffing as above. The apple should overlap the melon.

8. Stretch the fabric on the cardboard to overlap the back.

9. To make a pillow, place the Sabrina and a plain matching background cut to size, right sides facing. Sew along three and one half sides 1/2 inch in from the edges. Turn inside out, stuff firmly, and hand sew the unsewed seam closed.

10. To make a quilt using the fruits, re-scale the grid to one square equals 1 1/2 inches. Sew a fruit or two to a 12-inch square of fabric. Sew the applique squares together in rows. Sew the rows together to form the size of the quilt. Sew the applique quilt to a sheet. Evenly stuff with polyester between the two layers. Sew all three layers together following the seams. Hem the tufted quilt.

USDA asks offer witnesses

NEW YORK — Interested persons have been asked by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to preregister for the July 9 public hearing on a proposal to exempt from inspection — under certain conditions — retail stores that do a substantial amount of their meat and poultry business with so-called "nonhousehold consumers."

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) said the request to preregister witnesses was prompted by a large number of inquiries received since the hearing was announced May 16.

APHIS officials said that in order to promote an orderly meeting, USDA should be notified in writing prior to the hearing by those wishing to present a statement. Witnesses will be provided opportunities to speak in the order in which their requests are received by USDA. It will not be necessary, however, to file a statement ahead of the hearing.

Any interested persons or their representatives who have not filed a request to speak with USDA will be eligible to offer comments after the preregistered witnesses have been heard.

The proposal, originally announced April 4 and published in the April 8 Federal Register, was prompted by the fact that retail stores cannot sell over 25 per cent of their annual retail sales — or more than $18,000 worth — of meat and poultry products to "nonhousehold consumers" without having federal or state inspection in their meat processing rooms.

This limitation has created a problem for some retailers — particularly in nonurban areas — where a large part of sales might be to schools, hospitals, resorts, restaurants and similar "nonhousehold consumers." To ease this problem, the proposal would remove meat and poultry products which have been preprocessed and prepackaged under federal inspection from being included in the category to which the $18,000 limitation or 25 per cent limit applies.

Fireworks, firecrackers not simple toys

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Health Editor

Watch out for things that go boom in the night —and day — July Fourth.

That means firecrackers and fireworks. Even sparklers aren't harmless. Children grabbing the red hot end get hurt every year —despite the cautions from the National Safety Council and other accident-fighters.

Many states prohibit sale of sparklers and-or firecrackers but July Fourth fun things are set off by individuals in all states, according to Phil Dykstra, head of the Council's home safety department.

Police apparently would rather shoot Santa Claus than give a kid a ticket for the unlawful use of firecrackers where prohibited. Or arrest an entire family for unlawful use of Roman candles.

In the absence of police enforcement of prohibitions

Dykstra said probably the best course is to stick by a few safety rules on the firecracker front. To wit:

—Use a long punk.
—Don't set the firecrackers off under cans or glass bottles or jars.

—Never throw them at a person or persons. Toss them in a place that's open and free of people.

—When a firecracker doesn't go off, stay away from it for a while —until you're sure the fuse has really fizzled and is not just a slow burner. Many times persons have been injured when a "dead" firecracker went off in hands or blew up in their face.

Public displays of fireworks are safe as a rule. But each year some persons suffer burns from pieces of hot ash that drift into their eyes as they look at the beautiful sight overhead.

If you're sitting close and face such a danger it's a good idea to wear sunglasses, advises the Better Vision Institute.

Records of past July Fourth holidays indicate that several thousand Americans are hospitalized each year, as a result of fireworks' or firecracker injuries.

Many injuries are from private displays of fireworks —say at home. The Institute says watching supervised displays of fireworks is the safest way to enjoy the Fourth.

After the public displays, keep the children from fooling around in the area where the fireworks were set off.

Consider what may happen, based on this report from The Research Group Inc., the nation's largest legal research service for attorneys.

Like many other U.S. municipalities, the town of Estherville, Iowa, held a fireworks show on July 4, 1969.

"Several of the devices were unfired and were apparently overlooked by the fire department during a search after the show.

"Willy Rosenau, 14, found one unfired device. It was only one inch longer and one-fourth inch wider than the firecrackers Willy and his friends had seen before.

"And yet —it possessed 500 to 1,000 times more explosive force. When Willy sought to explode the device, it took off 90 per cent of his hand." There are efforts to tighten regulations on fireworks devices and firecrackers.

The Press and the American Revolution

JOHN DICKINSON'S "LETTERS FROM A FARMER IN PENNSYLVANIA"

by Dr. Francis G. Walett
Worcester State College
c. 1975 American Antiquarian Society
JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America,

"THOSE who are TAXED without their own consent, expressed by themselves or their representatives, are SLAVES. WE ARE TAXED without our own consent, expressed by ourselves or our representatives. WE are therefore — SLAVES."

Writing in the PENNSYLVANIA CHRONICLE in early 1768, John Dickinson used these words in condemning the latest attempt of Parliament to raise money in the American colonies. In his "Letters from a Farmer in Pennsylvania," published first in the newspapers and then in pamphlet form, Dickinson denounced the Townshend Revenue Act in this vigorous logical argument. The British attempt to tax the colonists in the form of import duties, he declared, was just as illegal as the recently defeated Stamp Act.

In 1767, Parliament had enacted a series of measures which were intended to raise a revenue in America, to reorganize the customs service, and generally to provide more imperial control. The Townshend Acts were opposed everywhere in the colonies, but no one stated the position of the colonists at this time more succinctly and more clearly than John Dickinson.

Dickinson, a native of Maryland, who was well educated in England, soon gained the reputation of being one of the most capable lawyers in America. He was serving in the Pennsylvania assembly at the time of the passage of the Townshend Acts, and he was immediately aroused by this new assertion of Parliamentary power over the colonies.

Already having written a pamphlet that declared the Stamp Act unconstitutional, he now composed a series of "Letters" which argued vigorously that Parliament had no authority to impose the Townshend Act on America. Where to have the letters printed posed a problem.

In the local politics of Pennsylvania, John Dickinson was part of a faction that defended the proprietary interests of the Penn family in opposition to a party that wanted a government more directly under the Crown. The maelstrom of politics in the province had led to the founding of the PENNSYLVANIA CHRONICLE in 1767, a newspaper published by William Goddard, formerly of Providence and New York. It was subsidized by the rather conservative Joseph Galloway and some friends who hoped to do away with the power of the proprietor. The arrangement proved to be an unhappy one; Goddard was a maverick in running the paper and soon displeased his backers. When he balked at dancing to his backers' political tune at times, he found his business in jeopardy.

News of the Townshend Acts gave Goddard and the CHRONICLE

a new lease on life. No one knows how the printer learned of John Dickinson's intention to get into the Townshend dispute, but Goddard scooped Philadelphia papers (and other newspapers, too) by publishing the first of the "Farmer's Letters" on December 2, 1767. Nothing could have angered Goddard's backers more. Joseph Galloway threatened to withdraw support, and ridiculed notions about the threat to American liberty and the rights of man. The stubborn printer fought for editorial independence, however, and published the rest of the "Letters" in twelve successive installments.

Although the "Letters" were published under a pen name (as was then the almost universal custom), it was soon clear that the author was John Dickinson. Galloway forced the CHRONICLE to carry articles intended to discredit the "Farmer," and this doubtless contributed to Dickinson's defeat in his campaign for the colonial assembly in October 1768.

Just as Dickinson's political career in Pennsylvania was being set back temporarily, his fame elsewhere in America was growing rapidly. The "Letters" appeared in numerous newspapers and in several collected editions. Praise was heaped on the "Farmer" in many places: writers extolled his virtues, town meetings and assemblies voted him their thanks, and Sam Adams paid him the supreme compliment by saying "He is a True Bostonian."

Dickinson's argument was quite explicit as he wrote calmly but firmly, "WE CANNOT BE 'HAPPY', WITHOUT BEING 'FREE' — that we cannot be free, WITHOUT BEING SECURE IN OUR PROPERTY — that we cannot be secure in our property, if, WITHOUT OUR CONSENT, OTHERS MAY, AS BY RIGHT TAKE IT AWAY." Even Francis Bernard, royal governor of Massachusetts, wrote that Dickinson had phrased "A Bill of Rights in the Opinion of the Americans."

John Adams, whose whole career was marked by moderation and reasonableness, was once described by John Adams as "a very modest man, and very ingenious as well as agreeable." He strongly opposed riots and violence but his words of moderation were lost in the wild harangues against British policy in the press, clashes between colonial mobs and customs officials, and conflicts between soldiers and civilians in New York and Boston that followed.

If Dickinson's advice was not followed by the Sons of Liberty, he nevertheless articulated very effectively the colonial argument against the Townshend Acts.

THE PATRIOTIC AMERICAN FARMER.
J-N D-K-NS--N, ESQ; BARRISTER at LAW

This portrait of John Dickinson is taken from Ames's ASTRONOMICAL DIARY AND ALMANACK for the year 1772. Almanacs were the bestsellers of colonial America. These publications, second in importance only to the Bible, were widely used in all of the colonies. As early as 1639 Stephen Daye may have published AN ALMANAC . . . CALCULATED FOR NEW ENGLAND at Cambridge, Massachusetts. At first almanacs contained only astronomical information and some prophecy, but in later years they contained a wide variety of material. There appeared witticisms, old sayings, fables or brief stories, historical vignettes, poetry, occasionally political opinions and even music. Often there were blank pages that could be used for diaries. Nathaniel Ames's almanacs were begun in Boston in 1725 and continued until 1774. This is a fine example of an almanac with much diversified material. Benjamin Franklin's POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC (Philadelphia, 1732-1757) is the most famous of colonial almanacs. It was unequalled in its day for its proverbs, wit and wisdom.

Nuclear council spreads money

By GAIL NEVINS
Money, money everywhere — or at least easily accessible amounts of it if nuclear power is your business.

The American Nuclear Energy Council has been funded with $250,000 for a massive campaign to argue that the nation must embrace nuclear power to meet energy needs in the U.S. and that the risks aren't as great as people think.

That quarter of a million dollars doesn't stand alone; it's in addition to a $1.2 million public relations budget for the Atomic Industrial Forum, a parent group with the same goals.

A safe-nuclear-energy initiative has qualified for the 1976 June primary election in California.

The initiative would prohibit construction of nuclear plants unless safety systems and disposal methods are confirmed effective by the state legislature.

The sponsoring group behind the action is "People for Proof" in Los Angeles.

The condition of the recycling industry in general seems to be improving following a real low point over the past winter and spring. Proof of this is expansion of a municipal program in the New York City boroughs.

Sanitation trucks in Staten Island have special racks underneath to hold residents' bundled newspapers. That community is seeking every-one's papers under a program begun by the New York City Department of Sanitation's own Environmental Protection Agency.

The City has plans to extend the program to the borough of Queens, making it the largest municipal newspaper recycling effort in the country.

The presidentially appointed Citizens Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality has issued a warning regarding national land use.

The committee states that the transition of 1.4 million acres of prime agricultural land each year into developments is "an irreplaceable loss."

Because the land lost each year is about equal to the state of Delaware, the committee has declared this loss as one of the nation's most pressing environmental and economic concerns.

Three years ago smells from a nearby vinegar plant, meat packer and paper maker nearly drove students from classes at the St. Paul (Minn.) Open School.

In a decision to take action, the students researched pollution laws, contacted heads of the companies involved, circulated protesting petitions, filed complaints and testified before the Pollution Control Agency.

The industries were found in violation of the law and ordered to clean up, which they did. After three years, the odors are gone.

A booklet describing the whole process is available from: St. Paul Open School, 1885 University Ave., St. Paul, Minn. 55104.

Communities can find use for teen energy

By JUDITH GELBER

In this year of widespread summer unemployment among teenagers, why haven't communities developed volunteer programs to absorb all this free-floating energy and to provide a sense of useful purpose to otherwise idle lives?

We adults have apparently been too wrapped up in our own overwhelming problems to give much thought to the young in our midst. Yes, we sympathize with those who can't find summer jobs to finance educational projects and other worthwhile pursuits. But beyond the sympathetic nod, there is little in the way of concrete guidance to the means of establishing roots and a permanent place in the community we adults are supposedly building for their future benefit.

The threat of violence among idle, disillusioned and disgruntled teenagers is real particularly in the cities. But avoiding or diluting this threat needn't and shouldn't be the major motivating factor for adults in their relationships with the young.

Rather, we should think of these youngsters as people who need to be productive and active in the real world instead of being isolated in the limbo of the years between childhood and adulthood. Furthermore, these people need the stability that comes with knowing they belong in a particular place.

Most young people have a great desire to be wanted and needed by the community at large. They know, for the most part, that they lack the background to take part in the decision-making process. However, although teenagers may not be able to juggle budgets, they do have the ability to help us find a way out of budgetary crises.

Most communities have had to slash educational and social service programs, or even eliminate some altogether, because of the need to keep taxes down to reasonable levels. But many of these programs could be kept alive with the volunteer help of our teenagers.

For example, parks are closed because towns can't afford to maintain them. Summer sports programs are dropped because there isn't money for counselors. Playgrounds go to seed and weed for lack of supervisors. However, teenagers have always excelled in these areas, and those without jobs may want to help their communities maintain public recreational facilities.

Also, there are many children who are in dire need of tutoring now that so many schools have closed their doors on summer remedial work. But there are many bright youngsters who would volunteer to help classmates who may fall too far behind in their studies to ever catch up.

And what about services for the elderly, the disabled and the disadvantaged that are being curtailed? Is it necessary to increase human misery when there are people who are waiting to be tapped for public service?

In other words, our idle teenagers can be effective allies in our efforts to maintain a humane approach to society. And it is quite possible that voluntary public service in this time of need may help these young people create the better world we all dream of achieving in the future.

Jobless claims continue slide

STROUDSBURG — Total un-employment benefits in the Pocono area continue a down-ward trend, but those in the immediate Monroe County area registered a slight in-crease last week.

In Northeastern Pennsylvan-ia the claims decreased by 652 to a total of 33,635 or 1.9 per cent below the 34,287 filed a week earlier.

In Monroe County, some 1,776 claims were filed, com-pared to a week earlier when 1,676 claims were filed, show-ing an increase of six per cent.

At this time a year ago in Monroe County, 565 claims were tabulated by the Pennsylv-ania State Employment Ser-vice indicating an annual in-crease of 214.3 per cent.

The weekly report furnished by attorney Guy Solfanelli of the state bureau showed the following statistics for North-eastern Pennsylvania:

Regular unemployment in-surance claims filed last week totaled 26,392 or 976 lower than the preceding week. The cur-rent figure is 68.4 per cent higher than the 15,670 claims filed during a corresponding week last year.

Extended benefits, or weekly claims filed under a state-fund-ed nine-week program de-creased by eight per cent, ex-periencing a drop of 251 from 3,145 to 2,894.

Federal supplemental bene-fits, or claims for weekly ben-efits under a 13-week, federally-funded program, dropped to 2,713 from 2,904 a week earlier — a decline of 6.6 per cent.

Special unemployment assis-tance showed a substantial in-crease in volume of claims filed going up to 1,636 as com-pared to 870 the preceding week. Lackawanna, Wayne and Lu-zerne counties showed a de-cline in the number of benefit weeks claimed for the regular unemployment insurance while Monroe, Pike, Susquehanna and Wyoming registered gains.

OBSTACLE — Cars and trucks thread their way around a three vehicle collision on the interborough bridge between Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg during Wednesday's rush hour. There were no injuries in the accident. Stroudsburg firemen washed gasoline from the road.

Nathan Cassel

Record honors carrier

STROUDSBURG — Nathan Cassel, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Carl Cassel of 891 Queen St., Stroudsburg, has been se-lected as The Pocono Record carrier of the month for June.

Cassel, who will be a sopho-more at Stroudsburg High School, was a straight 'A' stu-dent as a freshman, plays the trombone in marching and concert band, and lists among his favorite sports basketball.

Cassel started as a carrier for The Record in October, 1973 and has achieved a fine record of collection and ser-vice.

Although he is working at Victory Valley Camp for the summer, Cassel managed to arrange for a substitute and collects on weekends in order to pay his carrier bill and his substitute.

Cassel even notified all his customers by a direct mail of the arrangement he had made for the summer and told them to call him if there are any questions.

He will now be eligible to compete for the Carrier of the Year Award.

BES still open

Party raid nets one arrest

EAST-STROUDSBURG — State police at Swiftwater arrested a Bangor man late Tuesday night when they raided a party at Lake Valhalla, Smithfield Township.

Called to a recreation area at the residential development after receiving complaints, police found dozens of people and cars jamming the road and picnic pavilion.

Stephen A. Barzynski, 20, of 215 South Main Street, Bangor, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct when he allegedly began to be abusive with state police.

He was arraigned before District Magistrate Earl Ammerman and remanded to the Monroe County Jail in lieu of bail.

Police confiscated a half-empty keg of beer and cleared the area of people. Several of the young people told police they had permission from the landowner to have a party.

Offices closed

Murder trial date set for E-burg teen

BLOOMSBURG — The murder trial for a 17-year-old East Stroudsburg youth accused of killing a Smithfield Township service station owner in January has been scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Monday, Sept. 29 in Bloomsburg.

Jury selection in the trial of Gregory Powlett of 20 Kiwanis St. will begin on that date, according to James F. Marsh, district attorney for Monroe County.

Marsh said he expects to prosecute the case and receive assistance from Columbia County Dist. Atty. Gailey Keller only for questioning prospective jurors.

Powlett's attorney, Thomas J. Foley Jr., and Marsh met Wednesday with Columbia County Judge Jay W. Myers for a preliminary pretrial conference.

Marsh reported it was stipulated by counsel that the 180-day prompt trial rule be waived. The 180-day period to prosecute the case and receive assistance from Columbia County Dist. Atty. Gailey Keller only for questioning prospective jurors.

Powlett and two other East Stroudsburg youths, Michael Chase and Gregg Porter, were charged with the Jan. 24 shooting death of James D. Zane, 57, who died within an hour after his service station was robbed of $24.

Chase and Porter have pleaded guilty to a general charge of homicide and were convicted of third degree murder. They are scheduled to be sentenced at 9:30 a.m. today by Monroe County President Judge Arlington W. Williams.

Chase and Porter each could receive a maximum 20 years in prison and $25,000 fine.

Powlett, who was slated to go on trial in June in Stroudsburg, was granted a change of venue for his trial. Judge Williams said publicity surrounding the guilty pleas of Chase and Porter had not had enough time to fade from the minds of prospective jurors and therefore granted the move.

S-burg considers reapportionment

STROUDSBURG — Whether future borough councilmen are elected to represent the wards or on an at-large basis will be decided by the Stroudsburg Borough Council next month.

Wednesday the borough council decided to quit stalling and make a final determination at their regular August meeting.

This decision is "long overdue" according to borough solicitor Joseph McCluskey.

Stroudsburg councilmen may have been unconstitutionally elected since voters approved changes to the Commonwealth's Constitution in 1968.

The constitution required municipalities with a ward system to have equally apportioned districts as outlined under the "one man, one vote" edict by the United States Supreme Court.

Councilmen are supposed to represent nearly equal percentages of the borough's population — which is far from the case now.

Population shifts have caused the largest discrepancy to appear between the First Ward, which has the smallest population, and the Fourth

Ward, which will have the largest once all the new construction there is completed.

Approximately 150 to 200 new residents will be added to the Fourth Ward when the Stofflet Street urban renewal project is completed and the 100-unit elderly housing project is in use.

Mayor Warren F. Loney, Sr., has long been a proponent of an at-large system as the most feasible solution.

Redistricting would have to be done on a regular basis and would be costly, Loney said.

Loney counters the oft-heard argument against an at-large council that all five councilmen could be elected from the same street by saying it would be the same thing as the county commissioners.

Other councilmen who were formerly against an at-large council or had no firm opinion, seemed to be more inclined to Loney's point of view from remarks they made at the council meeting.

Second Ward Councilman Howard Popkin said he had discussed the matter with many people, including formal councilmen and now feels at-large would be best.

"What's good for one part of the borough is good for all. Everything effects all the wards," Popkin said.

Fifth Ward Councilman Joseph Wallace disagreed.

"Councilmen have a personal responsibility for the people in the ward. If it's at-large we'll get politics in it," he said.

Loney disagreed about politics. "We appointed people and didn't know what their politics were. Politics has never entered into any decision we've ever made."

Fourth Ward Councilman James Kitchen, who was on the fence on the issue, seemed to be inclined to go along with Loney.

Auto strikes S-burg boy

STROUDSBURG — A two-year-old Stroudsburg boy was injured Tuesday afternoon when he darted into the path of a car on West Main Street.

James Kresge, of 1192 West Main Street, suffered head and leg injuries when he ran into the path of a car driven by Anthony Ackowrey, 55, of 801 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The child was reported in satisfactory condition at Allentown General Hospital Wednesday. According to borough police, Ackowrey said young Kresge started to cross the street without looking and by the time he could stop his car, the car hit the child.

Campers squeeze into private park sites

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — With the closing of state park camping areas, it won't be easy for campers to find a site at private Pocono campgrounds this weekend.

Because of a state public workers' strike, state parks have closed down campgrounds and management personnel have turned away campers for the July 4th weekend.

In a survey of 14 private campgrounds, most owners reported no vacancies and advance bookings as far back as late April.

Mrs. Jan Burrowbridge, owner of the Delaware Water Gap KOA Campground, said she has already been forced to reject hundreds of persons seeking camp sites.

"I've been booked up since Memorial Day, and I've had to turn away hundreds of campers by phone," she said.

For Mrs. Marie Siberini of Kens Woods Campground in Bushkill, the situation has been much the same.

"We have 97 sites and will be completely filled for the weekend. I must have spoken to nearly 300 persons seeking reservations," she said.

Mrs. Meta Alberts of Mount Pocono Campgrounds said she has 120 camp sites booked-up for the weekend and has already turned away "about a dozen families who were turned away from state parks."

Marlin Serfass of Arrowhead Campgrounds, East Stroudsburg, said "we are as full as we can get."

"We do have a few tent sites, but not many," he said.

Even "overflow areas" at some campgrounds are filled for the peak summer season.

Mrs. Bernice Massey of Mountain Vista Campground, East Stroudsburg said she has 85 sites that are filled and an overflow field that can accommodate 20 campers.

"Even our overflow area is filled, but this is pretty normal for the July 4th weekend," she said.

Richard Burnley, president of the Pocono Campgrounds Assn., said "there is not much we can do about the situation now. If we could have known about the strike a little sooner, we might have been able to plan something."

Burnley's 100 sites at Fox Wood Farm Campground, East Stroudsburg are also filled as well as 30 units in an overflow area.

Other campgrounds that reported few vacancies were Bernie's Campground, Dingmans Ferry; Safari Campground, Scotrun; and Wilderness Campground, East Stroudsburg.

Steve Carbonara of Maple Rock Campgrounds, Henryville said he opened a new section recently and would be able to accommodate about 50 campers.

"Our regular 125 units are filled, but we have a new section where no advanced reservations were taken," he said.

Bill Woodward of Valley View Farm Campground, Waymart, Wayne County, said he has 25 sites available out of a total of 82.

Pa. parks to reopen today

GREENTOWN — All areas in local state parks will reopen today except for the campgrounds.

At Promised Land State Park, Stanford Shelton, park superintendent, said swimming, boating, fishing and picnicking areas will be open to the public in time for the July 4th holiday, but campgrounds will still remain closed to anyone who was not in a camp site as of July 1.

The state park will retain its normal daily schedule, but close shortly before sundown.

The state had originally decided to close all areas of the park as a result of a public workers' strike now into its third day.

Shelton said there will be a skeleton crew of 10 supervisors, rangers and lifeguards running the 6,000-acre Promised Land State Park during the weekend.

There had been picket lines surrounding the park, according to Shelton, but the strikers had been well behaved and mannerly.

At Tobyhanna State Park, where only three workers are out on strike, all activities will resume today except for camping.

Housing ordinance amended

STROUDSBURG — Borough residents asked to make repairs or improvements to bring their properties up to zoning code standards will not be asked to pay for permits.

The Borough Council Wednesday enacted an amendment to its codes enforcement ordinance dealing with fees for permits and extending the time for corrective action.

Residents will still have to pay permit fees for all voluntary repairs or improvements. The waiver of permit fees does not apply to commercial and industrial properties.

Residents ordered to make repairs will now have 100 days in which to do it, except where emergency conditions exist which require immediate action.

The amendment gives the Code Enforcement officer the power to grant a request for a reasonable extension of time where he has reason to believe the person is attempting to remove the violation.

But no such time extension may exceed 130 days unless authorized by the Code Hearing Board.

In other business, two alternate plans for designing the Point Park on West Main Street were presented by representatives from LaBar's Rhododendron Nursery.

Council was concerned about policing the park if there were too many trees around the perimeter.

A resolution was passed authorizing the landscape designers to combine the two proposals including tables and benches for the elderly in the adjacent high-rise building.

Robert Miller of 622 Scott St. was appointed to fill the vacancy on the Planning Commission created when John Granger resigned.

Council passed a resolution approving the $421,000 Community Development Grant agreement with the federal Department of Housing and Urban Renewal.

Sergeant Michael Chabal was transferred to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

Final Tocks study weighs in for title fight

By STEVE DRACHLER
Pocono Record Reporter

TRENTON, N.J. — The government published its "final" Tocks Island Lake study Wednesday. It is 11 months old and weighs 18 pounds — about as much as a baby the same age.

Comparing the two ends with size, as the government offspring is jammed with words no 11-month-old could imagine.

In fact, with some of the scientific jargon used, most of the decision-makers who will use the study as a guide will have a dictionary handy when they read it.

The study was ordered by Congress last August when appropriations for continued land acquisition and initial construction of a dam across the Delaware River bogged down in committee.

A coalition of senators, congressmen, state, county and local officials agreed an impartial, comprehensive review of the $400 million project was needed.

And so the restudy was born with a $1.5 million federal appropriation and an Aug. 28 deadline.

The study has been sent to the four member states of the Delaware River Basin Commission (Pa., N.J., N.Y., and Del.) along with copies to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Each of the four governors and the Interior Department will make a recommendation — either to build the dam, scrap the project or defer it until a later date.

The five Delaware River Basin Commissioners are expected to meet either late this month or early in August to discuss the study.

Over 3,000 pages thick, the study explores dozens of categories related to a dam and 37-mile long lake north on the Delaware River from Shawnee-on-Delaware to Port Jervis, N.Y.

The four stated purposes of the project — recreation, water supply, flood control and electrical power — were detailed — as were their many alternatives.

Effects of the project and the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area were outlined and future profit and loss figures were projected.

The study was completed by the New York City-based engineer firm of URS-Madigan-Praeger and Conklin and Rosant.

Their task was to gather all previous information on the study and catalogue it into an unbiased review. They did not make recommendations, but instead sought to provide deci-

Bake sales permitted in S-burg

STROUDSBURG — The discriminating tastes of a Stroudsburg health ordinance which has frosted bake sale devotees for 21 years may be amended soon to unleash pent-up appetites.

What Stroudsburg Council has cooking is a liberalization of the required ingredients necessary for a church, charity or community group to stage a bake sale to raise funds.

The 1954 health ordinance was amended Wednesday to allow indoor bake sales by non-profit organizations with a permit issued by the borough's health officer.

Baked goods must be "securely wrapped at the maker's home in aluminum foil, plastic, Saran wrap or some similar protective covering before movement to the bake sale."

sion-makers with the information needed to make a logical choice.

Poes of the project claim the study is a waste of time because it is being overseen by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The Corps, opponents contend, is blatantly supporting the project and should not have been in the position to oversee an impartial review.

A public information meeting will be held on July 22 in Philadelphia to gather comments on the final study. Comments will then be forwarded to the four governors and the federal government.

Proposed pizza parlor gets okay

EAST STROUDSBURG — Barring unforeseen circumstances, by November there will be a new pizza parlor across the street from East Stroudsburg State College.

The East Stroudsburg Zoning Hearing Board decided to allow Ronald Joachim to build a pizza restaurant at 265 Prospect St., continuing a nonconforming use in a residential zone.

Joachim, who currently owns and operates Pizza by Pappas, 607 Main St., Stroudsburg, said he had not yet heard of the board's decision officially.

He said he had originally hoped to have the new place open by September, but now is planning a November opening. In its decision, dated June 30, the Zoning Hearing Board concluded the variance is necessary to enable the applicant to have the "reasonable use" of his land.

The three-man board decided the lot size — 30 feet by 67 feet — and its location in the neighborhood would preclude its use for residential purposes in conformance with the borough zoning ordinance.

There is a laundromat on the north side of the property, an alley on the south side, a two-car garage to the west and the college across the street on the east.

The board ruled the proposed pizza parlor would not alter the character of the neighborhood or be detrimental to the public welfare.

Under the borough zoning ordinance, a nonconforming use may not be re-established after it has been discontinued or vacated for a period of 12 months or more unless an extension is granted by the Zoning Hearing Board.

The property had been vacated for approximately two and a half years.

The previous owner, Glenn Detrick, had built a restaurant on the property, but it was destroyed by an October 21, 1972 fire. During the subsequent two and a half years he tried to find a buyer for the property.

Matlack wins 10th game as Mets triumph, 7-2

Millan's two-run double beats Cubs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Felix Millan's two-run fifth inning double broke a 2-2 tie enroute to a New York Mets 7-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday night.

With one out in the inning, Mets' hurler Jon Matlack walked and went to second on Mike Phillips' single, then both rode home on Millan's hit to left centerfield.

Joe Torre's solo home run in the first inning, his second of the season, gave the Mets a 1-0 lead, but Matlack's error contributed to two unearned runs for the Cubs in the second.

Rob Sperring opened the inning with a single and went to third when Matlack threw Cub hurler Bill Bonham's bunt into centerfield and scored on Don Kessinger's sacrifice fly. Jose Cardenal walked and Jerry Morales singled to score Bonham with the final Cub run.

The Mets tied it in the fourth on singles by Rusty Staub and Ed Kranepool and Dave Kingman's sacrifice fly which set the stage for Millan's game-winning hit.

Reds, 4-3

CINCINNATI (UPI) — George Foster's three-run homer off Larry Dierker in the sixth inning Wednesday night gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

Foster's homer, his 14th of the season, came after infield singles by Ken Griffey and Dan Driessen and wiped out a 3-1 deficit.

Rawly Eastwick, who blanked the Astros the last four innings, gained his first victory against one loss. The defeat was Dierker's ninth against seven victories.

Houston took a three-run lead in the first off Tom Carroll. A walk to Greg Gross, a double by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson's infield hit scored the first run. Cedeno scored the second on a wild pitch and Rob Andrews drove home Watson with a single for the final run.

Indians beat Yankees, 3-2; Wise's no-hitter bid fails

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Duane Kuiper scored the winning run in the ninth inning when a throw from centerfielder Bobby Bonds scooted past third baseman Graig Nettles Wednesday night to give the Cleveland Indians a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

After two out in the ninth, Kuiper singled to center. Ed Crosby then drilled another single to center and Kuiper raced to third and scored on Bonds' error.

The Indians, who outlit the Yankees 10-4, grabbed a 1-0 lead in the third when Rick Manning singled, stole second, moved to third on catcher Thurmon Munson's throwing error and scored on George Hendrick's sacrifice fly.

After Chris Chambliss smacked a two-run home run to put the Yankees on top in the streak Wednesday with a four-hit shutout and Biff Poceroba belted three hits to knock in two runs and score another to give the Atlanta Braves a 6-0 victory over the Giants.

Niekro (8-6) threw his first shutout of the year and only the second this season by an Atlanta pitcher. It was the eighth complete game in 17 starts for the veteran knuckleballer, who struck out two while walking none and retired the final 14 Giants in order.

Rookie catcher Poceroba scored the first Atlanta run off loser Ed Halicki (3-5) after tripling in the third inning and coming home on Niekro's sacrifice fly.

Then in the fourth, with the bases loaded on a pair of walks and a fielder's choice, Poceroba singled home two more runs. Atlanta added three more in the seventh in knocking out Halicki on a double by Ralph Garr, Rod Gilbreath's single, two walks and a two-run single by Larvell Blanks off reliever Gary Lavelle.

Ferguson lost

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers have lost Joe Ferguson, a catcher who doubles in the outfield, probably for the rest of the baseball season because of an arm fracture, the club reported Wednesday.

Ferguson fractured the radius bone in his right forearm Tuesday night during an eighth-inning brawl in a game between the Dodgers and the San Diego Padres.

King outduels Evert to gain Wimbledon final

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Billie Jean King, playing in possibly her last major singles tournament, reached the Wimbledon singles final for the eighth time in 10 years Wednesday by staging one of her typically gritty comebacks to beat defending champion Chris Evert, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

In Friday's final, Mrs. King meets Evonne Goolagong Cawley, who dismissed Margaret Court, her childhood idol, in the other all-Australian semifinal, 6-4, 6-4.

Mrs. King, 31, said earlier this would be her last major singles appearance, but like Muhammad Ali, she may suffer a change of heart when it comes time for Forest Hills in late August. She is the reigning U.S. champion, having defeated Mrs. Cawley in an epic final last year.

Trailing 0-3 and 15-40 in the final set, Mrs. King suddenly found the form that made her the world's most successful woman player. She rattled off six straight games to take the match and end Miss Evert's unbeaten two year European streak.

"I don't know how I ever got out of that one. I can still hardly believe it," said Mrs. King. "I kept saying to myself, if I lose 6-0 I am going to be so embarrassed. This is my last Wimbledon. I can't lose this match now."

She didn't. Instead, Mrs. King cracked the normally ice-cool game of Miss Evert with a series of overhead smashes and drop shots that completely disrupted the rhythm of the Ft. Lauderdale girl, who suffered her first loss in 28 matches during which time she retained her Italian and French titles.

Mrs. King, who first appeared at Wimbledon when Miss Evert was a toddler aged five, could not have started worse. Everything she tried went wrong and in just 25 minutes she was a set down.

But then the atmosphere of the capacity Center Court she loves so much inspired her to raise her game and go for the winners she needed to break up Miss Evert's clockwork baseline game. As she began to find the lines, the 15,000 crowd began to cheer for her, virtually the first time in a decade they've been behind Mrs. King.

After an exchange of breaks during the first four games, Mrs. King broke Miss Evert with a final overhead smash and then went to 5-2 with the loss of only one point. She served out the set on her second set point.

The first three games of the deciding set all went to Evert and Miss Evert won them all to look safe at 3-0. But Mrs. King then held her service to start her run of six straight winning games which gave her the set and match.

It was virtually all up for Miss Evert when she doublefaulted at 30-all in the ninth, and what proved to be the final game. She saved one match point but on the second, her angled smash was out, and with it went her chance of retaining her crown and achieving her cherished ambition of defeating

Mrs. King on grass.

Mrs. King now has a chance of not only equalling Suzanne Lenglen's record six victories but also beating Elizabeth Ryan's figure of 19 titles in the three divisions.

Mrs. King won the title three times between 1966-68, then scored back to back victories in 1972-73.

"She's a champion," said Miss Evert in a tribute to her opponent. "She plays her best when she is down, she goes for broke."

Miss Evert said she had not played well during the tournament. "No one has given me a hard game. If they had, I might be in better shape. There was an awful lot of pressure on me this year and Billie Jean had the psychological edge."

Mrs. Cawley, who as Miss Goolagong was beaten by Mrs. King in the 1972 final, earlier dazzled the crowd with a series of stunning backhand cross-court passing shots which broke Mrs. Court's spirit.

The 32-year-old Mrs. Court, a mother of two, had trouble with her service throughout the match. She rarely got her first service into play, while her second was very weak. She also put pressure on herself by committing nine double faults. "I could not put my serve together. Being a serve-volleyer, you have got to get the good stroke on the service. That was the difference," Mrs. Court said.

The losing semifinalists earned $3,600 each, while the finalists play for a $16,100 prize.

Mike Hunter's baseball future is looking brighter every day.

Hunter, an East Stroudsburg High School graduate, has been promoted to the Philadelphia Phillies 'B' team after a week of intensive training at the Fort Lauderdale Baseball School.

The Phillies are comprised of two teams. Their 'A' squad won the Florida State championship last year and was selected to play in national competition in Wichita, Kansas.

According to early reports on Hunter, he's become known as "the hardest working player" at the school and has "surprised many with his diving catches and lively bat."

Hunter, who will be a sophomore at Lock Haven State College, began his six-month stint at the Fort Lauderdale school last month.

Little League playoffs

July is already here, which means Little League playoffs will soon be underway.

District 20's North Area playoffs begin at 6 p.m. July 14 with Pocono-North at Bangor. Stroudsburg will host Pocono-South and Slate Belt will meet Blue Mountain at Wind Gap in a pair of 6 p.m. July 15 games, while West End will travel to East Stroudsburg for a 6 p.m. July 16 contest.

Semi-finals for the North Area will be held at Stroudsburg on July 17 and at East Stroudsburg on July 18. The North Area final will be at 5 p.m. July 19 at the Slate Belt Little League field.

The Little League's Senior Division tournament gets underway at 1 p.m. July 12 with Twinboro (Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg) playing Pocono North-South at Dansbury Park and West End hosting Hellertown at 3 p.m. at the Pleasant Valley High School field.

The remaining first round pairings pit Bethlehem Northeast-South Side at Lehigh and City-FBT-Fountain Hill vs. Bethlehem Northwest at Freemansburg.

The double elimination tournament will continue through July 19 with sites and pairings dependent upon each winner and loser.

$250,000 Classic upcoming

The July 27 Monticello-OTB Classic, which is expected to be harness racing's richest race with an estimated purse of $250,000, could turn out to be a two-horse duel between Silk Stockings and Tarport Hap.

Both horses have a string of impressive credentials. Silk Stockings won a New York Sires Stakes at Monticello last week and has never been out of the money in her career.

Her chief rival, Tarport Hap, finished second last Saturday behind harness racing superstar Nero in the first elimination heat of the Cane Pace at Yonkers.

In the $80,000 Cane Pace run-off, Tarport Hap finished third behind Nero and Albert's Star.

Nuggets receive okay to pursue Thompson

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Virginia and Denver of the American Basketball Association have apparently reached an understanding allowing the Nuggets to pursue college basketball star David Thompson, a Squires' spokesman said Wednesday.

Steve Harriman said Virginia still has the draft rights to Thompson, but admitted that negotiations for the former North Carolina State forward are "pretty much between Denver and Atlanta now." The NBA Atlanta Hawks also drafted the 6-4 Thompson.

Should the Nuggets sign Thompson, Harriman said, "no confirmed reports indicate three Denver players—starting center Mike Greene, all-star guard Mack Calvin and Jan Van Breda Kolf, a 6-8 second-year swingman—would be sent to the Squires."

ABA rules prohibit attempts to sign another team's player or draft choice, and Harriman said "apparently some understanding has been reached" between the Squires and the Nuggets.

"We haven't screamed tamper so I guess it's safe to assume they have our permission," Harriman said. "If Denver should sign him, we would be compensated."

Harriman emphasized the importance of luring Thompson, an outstanding jumper with a 30-point college career scoring average, to any ABA team, and he said the Shelby, N.C., native "seems to like Denver" because of the team's Carolina roots. Nuggets' coach Larry Brown and club president Larry Scheer were once affiliated with the Carolina Cougars, which since has transferred operations to St. Louis.

DETHRONED CHAMPION — Defending Wimbledon women's singles champion Chris Evert dejectedly stands on the court after falling victim to a classic Billie Jean King comeback. Mrs. King won by scores of 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 to move into the final against Evonne Goolagong Cawley. (UPI)

Barber's blazing 65 leads GMO field by two strokes

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Miller Barber got off on the right foot Wednesday and kept away from trouble all day as he took the lead after the first round of the Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

Barber, a 16-year tour veteran, fired a 65, seven under par, over "the perfectly conditioned" Tuckaway Country Club course to take a two-stroke lead over Bob Zender, Art Wall and Wisconsin native Andy North.

Bunched at 68 were Dave Stockton, Dave Hill, Ken Still, George Johnson, Tom Jenkins and Mac McLendon and 63-year-old Sam Snead.

Everyone who played talked with glee about the condition of the course.

"It's a pleasure to play golf under these conditions," Barber said. "These are the best grass fairways I've ever seen. This course is absolutely perfect."

The 7,010-yard course was like a dream come true for many of the players who had spent the last two weeks struggling against the wilds of the Medinah Country Club during the U.S. Open and the Butler National Golf Course during the Western Open.

"After playing Medinah and Butler and having our games shoved down our throats it's a pleasure to play here," said Stockton.

D. Allison grabs Firecracker pole

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA. (UPI) — Donnie Allison, driving a Chevrolet, zipped around the Daytona International Speedway at 186.737 miles per hour Wednesday to capture the pole position for the July 4th Firecracker 400 stock car race.

Buddy Baker, of Charlotte, N.C., in a Ford, took the outside pole position with a speed of 184.687 mph over the 2.5-mile tri-oval track.

Allison, who races out of Daytona Beach, said afterwards, "The car ran a mile and a half faster than we thought it would."

Allison, one of stock car racing's most consistent money winners, said that after practicing Tuesday he thought 185 mph would be the maximum speed he would be able to squeeze out of his car. His lap time Wednesday bettered the 185.827 mph he turned in last February to win the pole position in the Daytona 500.

Allison and Baker headed a list of 20 drivers who qualified for the race Wednesday. The remaining 20 positions in the starting grid will be up for grabs in time trials today.

In the third position behind Allison will be David Pearson, of Spartanburg, S.C., who has won the annual Fourth of July classic the last three years.

Richard Petty, of Randleman, N.C., stock car racing's winningest driver who has yet to win the Firecracker, will be in the 13th position after being clocked at a disappointing 180.032 mph in his Dodge.

Barber's round was a model of perfection as he avoided any bogeys and had five birdies and one eagle.

And he was quick to give credit to a new zebra-striped putter for his good score.

"I haven't made this many long putts in three years," he said. He started his string with a 30-footer for an eagle on the par five second hole. And he finished strong with a 35-footer for a birdie two on 17 and a 40-foot putt for a birdie three on 18.

"I was rolling it right at the flag and some of those long ones dropped," Barber said. "I've been putting and playing well all year and this comes as no surprise."

Wall, 51, attributed his good round to some mysterious reading he did during a layoff of a couple of weeks.

"My golf this year has been rather pathetic to say the least," he said. "I stumbled on something—something I read—and I noticed my golf improving. I'm not ready yet to say what it was. Ask me again if I have a good round tomorrow."

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — You could be tempted now to turn from a profitable to a less productive course. Consider the whole picture. Avoid the pitfalls of heedlessness and haste.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Tread watchfully to avoid needless errors and rubbing others the wrong way. Tact and understanding will do a great deal to keep matters going smoothly.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Don't just dream about success. Forward strides in business, family matters and other areas CAN be made if you emphasize your gift for clever management.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Trend is toward the unusual. Rightly handled, this can be pertinent and profitable. The conservative course, however, should not be underestimated at the proper times.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Introduce a new note (perhaps a new purpose) for added incentive in making long-range plans. Output will substantially improve in so doing.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Follow through on well-devised plans and procedures and don't be sidetracked by nonessentials. Consider the suggestions of others but tailor them to suit your own needs.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Your financial situation about to improve. A member of the opposite sex will provide useful information — and inspiration. You will know what has to be done.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Some favorable hours; others may present unexpected obstacles. With a steady step and self-confidence, however, you can take all in stride.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Present tendencies toward impulsiveness and excitement suggest that you handle all situations with "kid gloves." Regulate hours so that you will have time to enjoy a hobby.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Make no changes in matters now running smoothly, but keep looking, nevertheless, toward areas in which there could be "stand-stills," where new tactics may be needed.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Generous stellar influences make this an excellent day for promoting unusual ideas and plans. Romance favored, also.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Now's the time to make the first move toward the attainment of a special goal. You have plenty of stellar support to back you.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most artistically gifted of all Cancerians and could succeed in such creative lives as painting, writing music or as a theatrical entertainer. But, somewhat unusual in such cases, you also have a fine head for business and finance.

The bidding:

North East South West
1 ♣ 4 ♣ 5 ♥ Dble
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead — seven of spades.

Here is a hand from a four-table team of four match. At Tables 1 and 2, the bidding went as shown and South got to five hearts doubled.

Had West led a club, declarer would have gone down two — 300 points. But both Wests led a spade, partner's suit, and as a result collected only 100 points.

At Table 3, where the bidding started the same way, West bid five spades over five hearts, showing full faith and confidence in partner's vulnerable four spade bid. North doubled, won his partner's king of hearts lead with the ace, but later scored only his ace of trumps. The outcome was that East made five spades doubled, worth 850 points.

At Table 4, there was even more dramatic action. Here, when the bidding went . . . West expressed considerably more confidence in his partner's four spade bid than his counterpart at the previous table. He went to six spades over five hearts!

Moreover, his judgment proved to be excellent when East made the slam, scoring 1,660 points! South had a difficult choice of opening leads and decided on a club, the suit his partner had bid, rather than a heart. It was a highly unfortunate choice, and the lead cost his side 1,860 points.

The deal illustrates how different players facing precisely the same circumstances react in different ways. All four Wests had to contend with a five heart bid by South. The first two Wests doubled — in correctly, in our opinion — the third West raised partner to five spades with only a singleton trump, while the fourth West went bravely on to six.

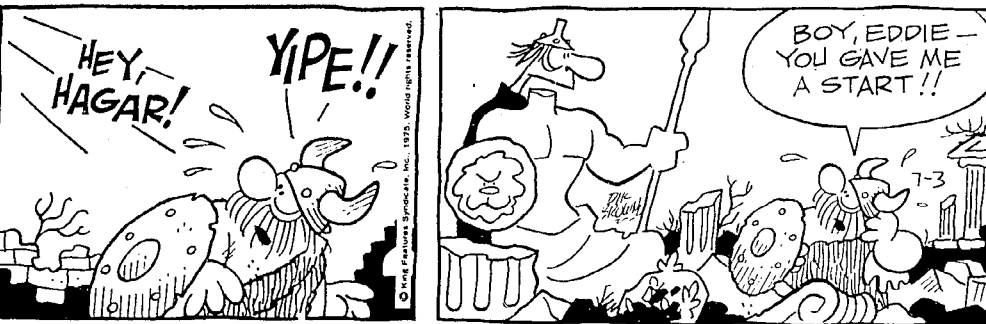

Who was right, you ask? Obviously, the West at Table 4. Never argue with results!

Ann Landers

Meat loaf

Dear Ann Landers: A reader recently referred to that column about the woman who did her housework in the nude as your all-time classic. I disagree. I believe the one about the meat loaf beats the nude housewife to smithereens. Will you print it again, please? —

Still Laughing In Omaha

Dear Still: My sister in Omaha (whose recipe it was) didn't do much laughing when that column appeared. She nearly had to have her phone taken out. People kept calling her with "complaints" and "suggestions." But here's the column — with pleasure.

Dear Ann: That dame in Michigan who didn't like your meat loaf is nuts. Only a moron would try a new recipe on guests. I made it for my family and they said it was the best they ever ate. I have orders to serve it every week. Love You

Dear Love: Read on. It seems I've started something.

Dear Ann: Your meat loaf is delicious. I tried it yesterday and my poker club raved. I left off the bacon because we keep kosher. If you have a recipe for beet borshi I'd like to have it. —

Miami

Dear M.: Sorry, no beet borshi recipe. I'm quitting while I'm ahead.

Dear Ann Landers: I never measure anything and I hate recipes. But I tried your meat loaf and it was terrific. The letter from the lady who said her dog wouldn't eat it made me mad. I gave your meat loaf to OUR dog and he cleaned the plate and cried for more. —

Sioux Falls

Dear Ann: About your meat loaf: It's a smash! I gave some to our cat. She ate every bit of it — and boy, is she fussy!

Love You

Crude drops off

Another year of crude oil production at 100 per cent of the maximum recovery rate in nearly all Texas oil fields has resulted in the second consecutive yearly dropoff in crude production in the nation's No. 1 energy state. The 1974 output of less than 1.3 billion barrels was 32.5 million barrels below the 1973 figures.

ABOUT AN EPICUREAN SAFARI . . .
Dining at "Selecta," 6 miles south of Stroudsburg, is like going to a private party abroad. The yellow sign on Rt. 191 reads only: "SELECTA (215) 588-1042 Rijstafel." A shale driveway leads through woods to a field-stone mansion, the parking lot studded with out-of-state cars.

The host, a spice-importer from Java, introduces the gourmets in the oak-beamed Rattan Bar. Except for stubborn martini-drinkers, most enjoy the "Selecta," exotic-blue House Specialty. The restaurant features an authentic Indonesian Rice-Table buffet on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, by reservation only. Other cuisine may be ordered ahead. Private parties of 8 or more on other days. Phone for mailing of information/menu card.

* Lobster that Diamond Jim would be proud of. The Mountain's UNIQUE 1½ pounds of Lobster stuffed with Crabmeat. And its own claws prepared only as a true Bostonian could. No mess, no fuss, just lots of good eating. A gastronomic delight. We believe our Lobsters, prepared in this manner . . . are the finest anywhere.

* Shrimp Ke-Bob. Large, tender, Juicy Shrimp resting on a bed of rice, blanketed with Parmigan and Tomato Sauce. Prepared as delightfully as Nellie resting over our Bar.

* Clam lovers of the world rejoice. Clams Demetri has arrived at Diamond Jim's. Its waiting for its fans to devour them. Imagine fresh Clams stuffed with a special Garlic Dressing topped with crisp bacon.

* These and other fine foods such as Prime Rib, Filets and Sole are all here for your enjoyment in Mountainhome. Just pick up your phone and call 595-2533 for Reservations or to answer any questions you might be wondering about on how such good food can become a reality in the Poconos.

The Green Thumb

Rose troubles

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
ROSE TROUBLES: We've been asked by many rose growers what makes rose buds start to come out, then fail to open. This is the work of the rose midge, a small fly, rarely seen except by trained entomologists.

The midge causes rose buds to crook or flop over at right angles, without opening. The small flower buds "blast" or abort, and later in the season the tips of new shoots die when they are about an inch or so long. Flowering practically stops.

CONTROL: Spray with malathion or Sevin. Actually, it's best to start early in spring when young growth is about 6 to 12 inches long.

It's also a good idea to treat the soil since the midge passes part of its life cycle in the earth.

If something is skeletonizing your rose leaves, blame it on the rose slug, the immature or larva stage of the rose sawfly. Slugs (nothing to do with the slimy garden slug) are greenish caterpillarlike worms that feed on the undersides of leaves. They skeletonize them or carve out conspicuous holes in the foliage.

CONTROL: Spray with malathion or nicotine sulfate.

By the way, there's a way to cut roses so they'll give you more mileage. Here are a few tips to help you:

(1) Remove any leaves that might decay under water in your arrangement.

(2) Take a sharp knife (not scissors) and cut off an inch from the end of each stem.

(3) When removing leaves or thorns, do not cut through the bark. Use a glove or cloth on your hands and simply pull it down over the stem to remove extra foliage and thorns. Never scrape or cut the bark.

(4) Place the roses in a clean, deep vase of warm water. Leave them in a cool room, or refrigerator to "harden" them for 2 to 4 hours before arranging.

(5) Water to which a good floral preservative has been added is the best medium in which to arrange roses. Don't use it stronger than manufacturer's recommendations.

By the way, if you happen to use the florist's porous foam blocks for arrangements, be sure to saturate the foam thoroughly in advance in clean water containing a floral preservative. Most foams should not be reused.

Premature wilting is not a sign that the rose is old. It often happens if the bud has been cut before sufficiently mature, or if a cut has been made through the bark. When a rose "flops" or wilts, cut the stem end off, and insert the bottom in a vase of warm water (about 100 degrees F). When the rose revives, replace it in the arrangement and it will be "good as new."

Ford's visit will help island

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (UPI) — President Ford's visit to this picturesque, historic island next month should give its less than 1,000 residents a terrific boost in both pride and pocketbook.

The President plans to spend July 12 and 13 on Mackinac Island, best known for its fudge, ban on automobiles, a hotel with the longest porch in the world and the Town Crier, a weekly newspaper published only once outside the summer season.

Gov. William G. Milliken has a summer residence on the island and last year he invited Ford to make the island a summer White House.

Residents still are hopeful the President will do so, but the ban against the use of automobiles poses a special problem.

"Scottie" Says:
